Transit Sale To Florida Group Given ICC Approval

Examiner Reversed; Wolfson Pledges 'Best Possible' Service by CTC

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Reporter

The Interstate Commerce Commission, reversing its examiner's opinion, yesterday authorized a group of Florida businessmen to acquire stock control of the Capital Transit Co.

In approving the application of Louis E. Wolfson and eight associates, the ICC in a 10-page brief overruled Examiner Vernon F. Baker's opinion that the proposed transaction would not be in the public interest.

Last week the Securities and Exchange Commission exempted North American Co. from competitive bidding and authorized the holding company to sell its Capital Transit holdings to the Wolfson group, subject to ICC sanction. The ICC approval yesterday apparently was the last hurdle to consummation of the transaction.

Opinion Signed by Three

The ICC's formal opinion, signed by Commissioners Mahaffie, Rogers and Patterson, said in part:

"We are not convinced . . . that the application should be disapproved solely because of the nonresidence of the parties or their lack of experience in transportation. It seems reasonable to assume . . . that they will rely on experienced and efficient management to protect their investment.

"Such management would also protect the investment of the numerous minority stockholders and should assure the continuance of an adequate and efficient transportation service to the general public."

Emphasizing that Capital Transit Co. heretofore has been under the control of North America Co., a nonresident stockholder, the ICC said the transit system would continue to be under the direct supervision of the District Public Utilities Commission "with respect to its local fares and service."

Resident Directors

The commission also stressed that the transit firm's charter requires that 9 of 15 directors must be legal residents of the District of Columbia.

Reviewing evidence of financial data submitted by the Wolfson group, the commission expressed itself as satisfied that "aggregate resources (of the group) far exceed the purchase price."

Under the agreement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Wolfson group has contracted to pay $2,189,160 to the North American Co. for a block of 109,458 shares of Capital Transit Co. stock. The Florida businessmen have put up $250,000 as "earnest money" and have agreed to put up the remainder by November 1.

The ICC in its brief went over the latest balance and earnings statements of the transit company, reviewed the background of each

Currier and Ives $3000 Rare Print Picked Up for 80c

Eaton, Ohio, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—A rare Currier and Ives print that once brought $3000 was purchased by a Tiffin, Ohio, factory worker for 80 cents, it was disclosed today.

The story of how the original lithograph, "The Life of a Hunter—A Tight Fix," was bought by John Zartman was revealed by Dr. Joseph R. Williams, a collector, who purchased the original last week.

Zartman, Dr. Williams said, bought the picture for its frame at an auction. A second picture covered the Currier and Ives print. A local collector referred Zartman to Dr. Williams, who declined to disclose how much he paid for the rare print.

Principals in Child Custody Case

A Split Family Episode

2 Small Boys Refuse to Join Father Despite Court Order

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Two little boys wept and screamed defiance yesterday until their father, who came here to take them from their mother under a court custody order, left empty-handed.

It was another episode in the split family existence of John A. Moore, jr., 11, and his brother, James, 7.

The father is John A. Moore, 44, a Mount Airy (Md.) farmer. The mother, Mrs. Rose B. Moore, 40, of 766 Princeton pl. nw., has had the youngsters since July 1, and now it is the father's turn.

Under District Court orders, Mrs. Moore can have John and James only for the first half of the summer and on alternate weekends during the school year. The mother had given them up after she obtained a divorce in 1943, and since 1946 has fought a losing battle to get them back permanently.

Moore went to the Princeton pl. apartment shortly after 5 p. m. He knocked on the door but would not enter. Both he and Mrs. Moore had their lawyers present.

"I think the boys should be brought to the door," Moore said.

He saw John in the living room, but Jimmie was hiding in the kitchen.

"Come on, Johnnie," Moore said. "We're going."

"No," John said, "I'm going to stay here."

"You're a big boy, son. Look how much you've grown this summer. Be a man and come with me," Moore said softly.

John pressed close to Mrs. Moore, and wiped his tears.

Moore looked at her a moment then and asked, "Won't you bring them here?"

There was no answer, so Moore said, "Bring Jimmie in and then Johnnie will come."

Jimmie was brought in but stood the full room length away.

"Won't you come with me, Jimmie?"

"No, I wont. You're not going to push me around," Jimmie shouted.

"Why not, Jimmie? What are you afraid of?"

"You'll whip me," the boy said as he sidled over to the mother.

"I promise you I won't," Moore said.

Then, for the first time, Moore became stern. Mrs. Moore all the time sat smoking a cigarette.

"I won't whip you. I promise you and I've never broken my promise to you, you know," Moore said. "But a boy shouldn't talk to his parents like that. I might spank you if you are insolent, but not for anything in the past."

"That's what you say," Jimmy replied.

Woman Found Dead in River

The body of a woman, her head badly battered, was found last night in the Potomac River near Great Falls Park.

Montgomery and Fairfax County police began an investigation to determine if the woman, who was not immediately identified, had met with foul play.

Police pointed out, however, she may have been injured in a fall or might possibly have been dashed against rocks in the river by the swift current.

Information was not immediately available on how the body was found or by whom, but Fairfax police, responding to the call, learned the body had lodged in shallow water near the Virginia shore.

They called Montgomery police into the case, they said, as the river's entire width is in Maryland's jurisdiction.

An examination was scheduled by Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, to determine if death was caused by drowning or by head injuries.

Had Cerebral Hemorrhage

Hopes Waning for Rutledge, In Coma; Family at Bedside

York, Me., Sept. 2 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge, near death at York Hospital, has suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, his physician said today.

Dr. Elmer Tower declined to amplify his statement further. He would not say when the hemorrhage occurred.

Previously the hospital had described the jurist's illness merely as a circulatory condition. Hope for him waned today when he went into a coma.

At 8:45 p. m., EST, when Rutledge had been in a coma nine hours, a hospital spokesman said: "There is no change in his condition. He is resting quietly."

Members of the jurist's family—Mrs. Rutledge, two daughters, Mary Lou and Jean Ann, a son, Neal, and the latter's wife—alternated in sleeping in an adjacent room and keeping a bedside vigil.

As the 55-year-old "liberal" went into the coma, a hospital bulletin reported his condition as grave. Oxygen was administered intermittently.

Two physicians, one of them Dr. Fred A. Geier of Washington, D. C., family doctor and friend, and Dr. Elmer Tower of the hospital staff, attended him.

"Everything has been and is being done for Justice Rutledge that could be done anywhere," said Dr. Geier.

The jurist entered the hospital last Saturday. He was stricken at Ogunquit, seashore resort in the nearby town of Wells. The Rutledges have vacationed there in recent years.

Earlier in the week, improvement was noted in the justice's condition, but as once before, a hopeful report was followed by a relapse.

'Shanghaied' Sailor Faces Prison Term

Guilty Verdict Certain After Court Martial Ends Without Acquittal

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Patrick James Ryan, 24-year-old Navy seaman apprentice who says he was shanghaied by the French Foreign Legion, will be found guilty either of unauthorized leave or desertion.

After conclusion of Ryan's two-day trial yesterday before a Navy court martial, the court made no announcement of its findings.

This meant Ryan was not acquitted, for under Navy procedure an acquittal would have been announced immediately, explained Comdr. George D. Sullivan, Judge Advocate General of the Potomac River Naval Command.

Findings of the board—which can mean up to six months in prison for absence over leave, or up to two years in prison for desertion—will be reviewed by Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command, before the verdict is announced.

Under a previous unauthorized-leave sentence, Ryan could be given also a bad conduct discharge for violating probation, while if he is found guilty of desertion, he can be dishonorably discharged, officers said.

Earlier, Walter H. Moorman, Ryan's counsel, had charged the sailor had been deprived of his rights under the Constitution while he was confined to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda because he had not been provided with legal counsel when he asked for one.

A motion by Moorman to advise Admiral Davis, convening authority for the court martial, of this

Costello Call Need Urged By McCarthy

But Hoey Feels Gambling Figure Isn't Needed in 5-Percent Probe

By The Associated Press

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday said it is "very important" that the New York gambling figure, Frankie Costello, be called in the 5-per-center investigation. But Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) indicated he isn't convinced.

Hoey, head of the Senate committee making the inquiry, said at his Shelby (N. C.) home that nothing had been brought out to link Costello with any of the witnesses.

McCarthy said "a number of things" have cropped up in the investigation about which he wishes to ask Costello.

"I can't disclose them now or it would foul things up," the Wisconsin Senator told a reporter. But he said Costello is a "very necessary" witness and he will insist that the so-called "slot machine king" be called.

Vaughan Denies Connection

The persistent McCarthy rang in Costello's name several times this week as he fired questions at Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's Army aide, in the Senate investigation of the part influence plays in getting favors from the Government.

Vaughan denied all connection with Costello, whom he referred to as "the New York gangster."

McCarthy wanted to know whether campaign funds turned over to Vaughan had come from Costello. Vaughan said he had no knowledge of it.

Had Vaughan ever been investigated on a charge that "Costello" liquor interests paid him to get more grain for liquor-making? Vaughan said he had never heard of such a charge and denied it.

In New York, Costello was not available and his attorney declined to get in touch with him for possible comment.

Recessed for Month

The hearings by the Senate investigations subcommittee recessed Friday for about a month. Meanwhile, the staff will continue its work. McCarthy said numerous leads have been uncovered that he thinks should be followed up.

Three future witnesses have been named by Chairman Hoey. They include two whose doctors have said they have been too ill to testify:

James V. Hunt, Washington management counselor and friend of Vaughan, who has denied he did anything improper in representng businessmen, and David Bennett, president of the Albert Verley Perfume Co., which gave Vaughan seven deep freezers. Vaughan presented them to Mrs. Truman and other Washington notables.

The third witness already scheduled is William Helis, oil producer and wealthy sportsman named by Vaughan as a contributor of $2000 to $3000 campaign money in 1946. Vaughan said he understood it was collected from Greek-Americans friendly to the Democratic Party.

Helis also has been described as having sought Vaughan's aid in getting a permit for scarce building materials at the Tanforan race track in California.

But in New York, William Helis, jr., has told reporters that it was he, not his father, who communi-

U. S. Charges Russians 'Welshed' on Austria; Anti-Tito Revolt Seen

Cominform Says 'Genuine' Reds Plotting Overthrow Within Yugoslavia

Bucharest, Romania, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Cominform Bulletin today said a "genuine" Communist movement which may some day overthrow Marshal Tito is springing up all over Yugoslavia.

The Bulletin, official publication of the Cominform bloc, said new underground "conspirator" groups are being formed in the Balkan country. It predicted solution of the Tito-Cominform feud will come from within Yugoslav.

An editorial entitled "The Fascist Beasts Have Run Amuck" said:

"The Yugoslav working people will find the strength to put an end to the criminal activities of the Fascist Tito-Rankovic clique."

(Lieut. Gen. Alexander Rankovic is a vice premier in Tito's heirarchy.)

Radio Station Reported

The Cominform paper said Yugoslav exile Communist movements now have their own radio station, and that four anti-Tito newspapers are being printed abroad and distributed inside Yugoslavia.

Tito is maintaining an army and police force totaling some 800,000 men, the paper said, not counting secret police agents "who are everywhere." Before the Tito-Cominform split the Yugoslav army consisted of only 300,000 men, the paper added.

In June, 1948, Tito and his top Communist lieutenants in the Belgrade regime were charged with "Nationalistic" leanings by the Russian-led Cominform. It accused the Balkan leader of deviating from the Marxist-Leninist—"genuine"—line as laid down by Moscow, and ousted him from the Cominform.

Western diplomats in Bucharest, however, do not think the Cominform nations will wage war against Tito. They are not unduly concerned over reports published abroad that troops are being deployed against Yugoslavia.

"Act of Provocation"

Yesterday, a Romanian spokesman said reports of such troop concentrations are "unfounded and an act of provocation."

Bucharest, publication center for the Cominform Bulletin, is considered to be a sensitive listening post for policy trends. The paper's staff, scattered in various countries, reports to its Bucharest headquarters by telephone.

The Bulletin, until now a monthly, will be published weekly beginning September 16. It is published in 10 languages—Russian, French, English, German, Roman-

Barsov Diary Arouses U. S. Suspicions

Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporter

Two documents found in the Washington hotel room occupied by Anatoly Barsov, the Russian deserter who had a change of heart, were being examined yesterday by State Department experts.

The documents, one a diary, the other a small, coverless notebook, ostensbily were written by the former Soviet flier who found the United States not to his liking and asked to be returned to Russia.

However, suspicious translators indicated they are not sure the handwriting is Barsov's.

The documents were found in a room at the Alturas Hotel, 1509 16th st. nw., where Barsov stayed before he was seized August 17 by agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and whisked off to Ellis Island.

The documents were turned over to the State Department by Edward F. Jones, assistant chief of the Time and Life magazine bureau here. Jones said his bureau borrowed them from the manager of the hotel, then decided they should be in the hands of the State Department.

State Department officials said both documents are being carefully studied but refused to discuss their contents. However, other persons

Chiefs of AF, Army to See Carrier Flying

Part of Johnson's Program for Cross Education at Top

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

High officials of the Air Force and Army will get an indoctrination in Navy aircraft carrier operations late this month as part of a program of "cross education at the top" in the armed forces.

Later, the chiefs of the Army and Navy will fly in the B-36 global bomber and Navy and Air Force officials will take a ride in a Sherman tank.

It's all part of a program of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson to develop better understanding among the high command of each other's capabilities and problems. A recent survey showed these rather interesting things:

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, never has flown in the B-36 or been aboard an aircraft carrier at sea.

Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of naval operations, never has flown in the B-36 or ridden in an Army tank.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, never has been aboard a carrier at sea or ridden in a tank.

Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, vocal champion of the B-36, never has been aloft in that giant bomber. Neither has he been aboard a flattop operating at sea, or been in a Sherman tank.

Johnson, himself, has a similar record.

"I have been so busy with legislation and congressional hearings that I haven't had the time to get into the field," the Secretary commented, "Therefore I have not been on a carrier, nor on a B-36, nor in a Sherman tank.

"I hope to correct all three deficiencies in the near future."

Johnson has expressed the opinion that much of the bickering be-

Johnson Urges Senators Use Commercial Plane

Secretary of Defense Johnson turned his economy drive on Congress yesterday, delicately suggesting that Senators planning an around-the-world junket take a commercial plane instead of a special Air Force transport.

This, he said, would save the Air Force $25,000.

Though there have been insistent cries from Congress for economy, the unprecedented missive from Johnson jolted the legislators.

Said Senator Thomas (D., Okla.): "I know Senators will not be pleased."

Thomas, as chairman of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on the armed services, had planned to lead 11 other Senators on a two-month inspection trip in Europe.

Apparently Healthy Boy, 2, Falls Dead; Doctors Puzzled

Uncle, Grandmother Eyewitnesses in Yard; Autopsy Gives No Clew

A chubby, 2-year-old Arlington boy, apparently in perfect health, was mysteriously stricken dead in full view of his uncle and his grandmother in the front yard of his home at noon yesterday.

An autopsy performed on the body of the boy, Richard Cahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Cahill, 2034 N. Cleveland st., Arlington, failed to reveal any cause of the tragedy.

Arlington Coroner W. C. Welburn issued a certificate of natural death but said "the whole thing is very mysterious." He said further laboratory tests would be made in an effort to find a solution.

Dr. Welburn, who is also the Cahill family physician, ruled out all external causes of death as well as heart failure. He said there was no sign of hemorrhage.

The physician declared that only in one half of 1 per cent of cases does an autopsy fail to reveal the cause of a death.

The boy's uncle, Theodore Cahill, reconstructed the scene:

"Richard was standing beside Grandma and me in the front yard. We had bought some corn and eggs from the huckster—and over he went. Grandma called out and we carried him in the house limp."

Unable to arouse the still form, the child's mother, Mary, rushed

6-Point Agenda Set

Preliminary Dollar Talks End on Note of Pessimism

By The Associated Press

British, American and Canadian officials ended their preliminary fact-finding conference yesterday reportedly agreed on suggesting six steps for easing Britain's dollar crisis.

The big question of how Britain is to earn enough dollars to meet its expenses was left unanswered as the negotiators adjourned their week-long discussions.

This critical problem will be handed to the top cabinet officers of the three governments who meet here Wednesday in hope of discovering a long-range formula to solve the kingdom's dollar shortage.

State and Treasury Department officials refused to discuss results of the sessions. The tentative agenda agreed on, they said, would be submitted to London and Ottawa for approval over the weekend.

Officials connected with the talks, however, acknowledged they still are pessimistic about chances the top-level meeting will find a way to reverse Britain's economic slump in the near future.

Although terms of the agenda to be proposed were kept secret, it was learned these six main points will be considered as "stop-gap measures" when the talks begin:

1. A new reduction in British buying from the United States in favor of purchases from non-dollar areas offering "alternate sources" of supply. Britain already has cut American purchases 25 per cent in a belt-tightening move.

2. Simplifying and streamlining American customs regulations to make it easier for British ex-

Soviet Is Accused Of Treaty Demands 'Exceeding' Pact Previously Made

By the United Press

The State Department yesterday accused Soviet Russia of welshing on an agreement defining principles for an Austrian peace treaty.

The department issued a statement on the Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers' talks on the Austrian treaty which ended in deadlock in London Thursday.

The talks were carried on within the framework of principles agreed on at the last meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in Paris.

The department said some of the most important issues on which there was a stalemate were "those on which Soviet demands for economic advantages to be derived at Austria's expense exceed the principles which had been agreed at the Paris CFM."

"Had No Proposal"

The statement said that despite the impasse, the Western deputies propose to reconvene the four-power talks in New York after a three-week recess.

"The Soviet representative had no proposal to make on this subject, nor would he agree to the United States proposal to reconvene the deputies," the statement said. It added that Soviet Deputy George Zarubin finally agreed to refer the proposal to Moscow.

The department said the only "concessions" made by the Russians were largely at the expense of Yugoslavia.

The Soviets agreed to abandon support of Yugoslav territorial and reparations claims against Austria after Yugoslavia's break with Russia and the Cominform countries.

The statement accused the Russians of "seeking to reserve to themselves war booty which they had previously agreed to relinquish, as well as the greater share of Austria's oil refining capacity and oil exploration areas of which they were to have received only some 60 per cent under the treaty document."

Statement Is Quoted

The State Department in its statement said:

"Among 22 treaty articles discussed at the Austrian treaty talks in London, the deputies have reached agreement on 13. The nine still in disagreement include some of the most important issues, including those on which Soviet demands for economc advantages to be derived at Austria's expense exceed the principles which had been agreed at the Paris Council of Foreign Ministers.

"Nevertheless, the Western Deputies have voiced their willingness to reconvene in New York for the purpose of continuing the treaty talks. The Soviet representa-

Canton Rushes Troops as Red Attack Nears

Canton, China, Sept. 2 (AP).—Communist irregulars were striking today toward Tsungfa, only 35 miles northeast of Canton.

Private reports said they were 2000 to 3000 strong, but the situation was regarded seriously enough so this Chinese Nationalist capital dispatched a whole division to cope with it.

The Red guerillas were said to be striking from the vicinity of Lungmoon, 65 miles northeast of Canton.

(Communist sources in Shanghai, however, said Lungmoon had fallen when the town magistrate went over to the Reds, and that the irregulars were consolidating their strength steadily. They were said to have been armed by Liu Po-cheng, Red general, whose regular army forces are still 140 miles and more away from Canton.)

The Nationalists had no fresh reports on Red regular army operations northeast of Canton, but said the Communists on the railway to the north were still falling back inexplicably. It said Gen. Lin Piao's Thirty-ninth Army had abandoned Changteh, 410 miles north-northwest of Canton.

Military observers believed the Communists might be regrouping to make a drive westward toward Chungking simultaneously with a big push against Canton.

ECA Nations to Cut 'Needs' 4 Pct. More

In Trade Act

GOP to Fight For Rein on Tariff Cuts

NYHT News Service

Senate Republicans—almost to a man—will fight for retention of the "peril point" provision of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act when its revival and continuation are called up in the Senate after the present Labor Day recess.

Senator Eugene D. Millikin, of Colorado, ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee, indicated yesterday that the forthcoming battle will be "furious," if Truman Administration leaders try to lower tariffs for the benefit of Great Britain without heeding Republican demands for protection of domestic industries.

The Senate trade agreement controversy, it was noted, will get under way at the time the Anglo-American monetary and economic conversations are being carried on here, designed to assist the British government in meeting its obligations without further reduction in the British dollar reserves.

Senator Millikin is leading the drive to keep in the Trade Agreement Act a provision, enacted by the Eightieth Congress, requiring President Truman to report to Congress if he cuts tariffs below the point that the Federal Tariff Commission, after investigation, finds "dangerous" to American industry.

Millikin, relating the Senate row to the forthcoming Anglo-American parley, said there probably would not be trouble if the "peril point" procedure in the law enacted last year is observed by the Truman Administration before cuts are made in duties to help the British. "But if the idea is to make concessions to Britain at the expense of American industry, there will be a full-fledged Senate row," said Millikin.

Republican members of the Senate are preparing to point out, with some Democratic help, that many American industries already are being hurt under existing trade agreements. And the prospect is, they argue, for more damage to American producers and workers, under similar agreements, as industries abroad are built up by American dollars contributed by ECA.

Paris, Sept. 2 (NYHT).—The nations of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, who agreed Wednesday to American aid allotments they themselves called less than the irreducible minimum, today were confronted with the fact they will have to prune 4 per cent more from their figures.

But they voted to ignore the threat for the time being—at least until funds actually are voted by Congress.

The cut will take the form of a reserve pool of 150 million dollars, to be deducted from the sum granted by Congress, to be used for reduction of trade and payment barriers, development of overseas territories, and financing investment projects of international significance.

Hoffman Insists

Since the Council of the OEEC has divided $3,776,500,000, expected to be very close to the sum voted by Congress, they would have to scale down their figures by approximately 4 per cent to fit in the 150 million dollar pool. Thus, Britain's 962 million dollars would drop to about 924 million dollars, and other countries would suffer in proportion.

Although the nations are not enthusiastic about the pool plan, it is backed by the insistence of Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman. It is clear that if the nations do not provide for the cut by a set of new figures, ECA will make the slash when the figures come to it for approval.

American insistence on the pool came very close Wednesday to destroying what agreement there was, it was learned today. While the countries actually were voting on aid figures set before them by Robert Marjolin, secretary-general, and Baron Jean Snoy, chairman, a message came from ECA advising them to include the pool.

Message Recalled

The message was recalled when the ECA was told it would wreck the meeting. The council then went on to divide the full sum, and to express disapproval of the pool program. But yesterday the message came again, and it was made clear the OEEC has no initiative in the matter.

Although both sides deny it warmly, there is evidence of growing friction between ECA and OEEC headquarters here. While ECA cannot hide the fact that adoption and publication of yesterday's report was displeasing to it, OEEC is faced with ECA insistence on a program that most of the nations, led by Great Britain, do not want.

Bolivian Army Battle With Rebels Looms

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 2 (AP).—A battle between government troops and rebels was in prospect today, as opposing forces set out from Cochabamba and Sucre.

Government antiaircraft units fought off another rebel bombing attack on La Paz, Bolivia's capital, keeping the raiding planes at such high altitudes most of the bombs missed.

The government announced capture of Camiri, in the Chaco district, described as a key point.

Some 1500 loyal troops, fresh from their mop-up of revolutionists at Cochabamba, headed toward rebel-held Sucre, 250 miles southeast of the capital. Revolutionists from Sucre started northward.

A battle may take place in the vicinity of Aiquile, midway between Cochabamba and Sucre. If the government forces win, they could occupy Sucre, and possibly recapture Potosi. This would isolate the remaining insurgent forces in Santa Cruz.

Charge: Treason

Ex-Sergeant Accused of Helping Japs

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—A tall, erect United States Army former sergeant was charged with treason today on grounds that he freely aided the Japanese who captured him on Corregidor in 1942.

Neatly dressed in civilian clothes, John David Provoo, 33, bit his lip when informed in court that treason carries with it the penalty of death upon conviction.

Provoo, a one-time student of Oriental religion, comes from Sausalito, near San Francisco, Calif.

He was accused of voluntarily writing sketches and plays which were broadcast as propaganda by the Japanese radio during the war.

The Army and the FBI have kept him under close scrutiny ever since his release from Japanese captivity at the war's end.

United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald refused to grant Provoo bail. The soldier was held for a hearing September 9.

Contrasting Provoo with Tokyo Rose, the accused woman propagandist of wartime Radio Tokyo, United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey told newsmen:

"Tokyo Rose was used for propaganda purposes, while this fellow is charged with actively aiding the Japanese forces by voluntarily offering his services to the Japanese forces to assist them in the occupation of Corregidor."

McGohey declined to give further details of the accusation against Provoo at this time. He said Provoo was honorably discharged from the Army in 1946 but reenlisted. He was stationed at Fort Meade, Md., until he was brought here today and discharged to face the treason charge.

The complaint against Provoo was made by FBI Agent George E. Davis. It alleged that Provoo, a native-born American, first began serving the Japanese May 6, 1942, and continued to aid their propaganda broadcasts until September 2, 1945, when the war ended.

The broadcasts, the complaint said, were beamed to the U. S. and to American combat troops in the Pacific by the Broadcasting Corp. of Japan, "an instrumentality of the Imperial Japanese Government." Davis said Provoo admitted a number of "overt" acts in connection with the broadcasts.

McGohey said Provoo had been married but was divorced while in the Army. He entered the Army in 1941, McGohey said, and was assigned to the Philippines that July.

Chief Assistant United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol said Provoo worked in a Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco prior to the war and had a "good work record."

Saypol added that before the war Provoo made a trip to Japan and picked up a smattering of the language. When he was captured at Corregidor, he tried to show the Japanese that he had a knowledge of the Japanese language and customs by disguising himself as a Buddhist priest.

When the war ended, Provoo was found by the United States Army of Occupation in a prisoner-of-war camp in Japan.

Saypol said that other prisoners informed American authorities of the part Provoo allegedly played. He added that incomplete records captured by the American Army "disclosed partial confirmation" of the suspicions against Provoo. Provoo, however, was allowed to remain in the Army until today.

Prime Minister Says Japan Must Pay All Prewar Debts

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, in an unprecedented move for the leader of a loser nation, today told the Japanese to prepare to pay off all of this country's prewar debts.

Yoshida also declared the people must return the money received from United States aid funds.

It is "no honor to a nation to rely indefinitely upon the generosity of another country," the Prime Minister said.

"Japan should be ready to undertake liquidation of all her foreign loans outstanding since prewar years," he also added.

"It is incumbent upon us to maintain our old reputation abroad as a nation which never defaulted on its foreign obligations."

Confident that Japan eventually will be admitted to the United Nations, Yoshida told the Japanese they will first have to "travel the long and toilsome road of privation and self-denial."

Former Premier Tetsu Katayama, Socialist leader, who has just returned from Europe and America, urged the Japanese to get behind a drive for a peace treaty.

He spoke to Japanese cultural and business leaders, seconding the plea for a peace conference made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the fourth anniversary of Japan's surrender.

Initial Talks On Dollar End

porters to get their goods into the United States.

3. Relaxing terms of the 1946 British loan agreement to allow Britain to discriminate during the financial emergency against American goods which must be paid for in scarce dollars.

4. An intensive drive by the British government to advertise, distribute and package its wares better in the United States as a means of attracting new customers.

5. Speeding up American Government purchases of such strategic materials as rubber and tin to provide Commonwealth nations with money needed in the next few months.

6. More American loans to, and purchases from, southeast Asian members of the British Commonwealth to lessen their demands on Britain for dollars.

Officials participating in the talks said these six steps are designed mainly to check the drain on Britain's reserves pending further study by the three governments of the British economic problem.

A three-power economic council probably will be set up, they added, to make long-range solutions, such as ways to reduce British production costs. A new tariff-cutting conference to reduce American duties on British exports is another step talked about as a possibility.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and Secretary of State Acheson, who will lead the American delegation at the September 7 meeting, are reported convinced devaluation of the pound is "inevitable."

But as a matter of tactics they will not press the point, lest the British blame the United States later if they make the move and their economic troubles continue, as well they might.

Snyder and Acheson, however, are primed to express their views on this, should the British ask their opinion.

A reduction in the par value of Britain's money, in their view, should be accompanied by a general devaluation of most European currencies. This could be done through the International Monetary Fund, which is holding its annual meeting here September 13.

European Devaluation Opposed

Strasbourg, Sept. 2 (NYHT).—The European Consultative Assembly today voted down a proposal it go on record as favoring devaluation of European currencies in relation to the dollar.

Hugh Dalton, Socialist, of Britain, appealed to the Assembly not to do this at a time when British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps were "crossing the Atlantic to discuss this matter" with American officials.

Andre Philip, Socialist, of France, asked President of the Assembly Paul Henri Spaak to close the debate on the subject on the ground that discussion might produce "speculative movements." Philip also referred to the forthcoming Anglo-American financial talks t Washington.

Spaak said he did not have the authority to order the Assembly not to debate this or any other topic. The Assembly then voted down an amendment by Bertil Ohlin, liberal, of Sweden, to the Economic Committee's report, stating that "the rates of exchange between the European currencies and the dollar as well as between the various European currencies must be adapted to basic economic conditions."

Schuman Will Discuss 'Vast Range of Problems'

Paris, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said today he and United States Secretary of State Acheson will review "a vast range of problems" when they meet in Washington later this month.

Schuman, who leaves Monday for America aboard the liner De Grasse, said he will confer with Acheson as soon as he arrives in Washington September 14.

"We will discuss a vast range of problems, including those brought out in the three-power Anglo-American-Canadian monetary talks," he said. He did not name the other topics.

U. S. Not to Cut German Force, Handy Says

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Gen. Thomas T. Handy arrived today to take command of the 110,000 American troops in Germany, and promptly announced the United States has no intention of reducing its occupation forces.

Handy, who probably will serve as chief American liaison officer with "Western Union" defense forces, as well as United States commander in Europe, was greeted by a 17-gun salute as he stepped out of the C-54 transport in which he flew from Paris.

Army, Navy and Air Force honor guards snapped to attention as the 57-year-old soldier stepped out of the plane.

Handy was greeted by High Commissioner John J. McCloy, and his chief subordinates—Army Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, Air Force Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon and Rear Admiral John Wilkes.

The tanned, four-star general said his mission in Germany will be to support the policies of McCloy with the 110,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen under his command.

"I don't look forward to the future with any pessimism," Handy told newsmen, "but I have never seen a job where you didn't have trouble."

He said he was sure there would be no immediate cut in troop strength in Germany, despite the recent shift from military to civilian control in the western zones.

The general said he expected to take over the job of maintaining contact between the joint United States military staff and the west European defense headquarters at Fontainebleau, outside Paris. The liaison job is now held by Huebner.

Russian Handbag Prize

U. S. Spending $1.60 for Each $1 in Income

By the United Press

Spending at the rate of almost $1.60 for every dollar of income, the Treasury was $2,593,474,078 in the red today for the first two months of the new fiscal year.

If the rate continued for a full year, the deficit would exceed $15,500,000,000 by next June 30. But income-tax collections due this month and in December, March and June will pull it far below that figure. It will not be enough, however, to get the Treasury out of the red.

The amount of deficit next June will depend on several factors. They include cuts in Government spending and changes in the tax laws.

Estimates of the ultimate deficit range up to six billion dollars. In any event, it apparently will be far above the $1,800,000,000 with which the Government ended the last fiscal year two months ago.

Treasury figures show why. Tax collections for the first two months are about the same, better than four billion dollars for each fiscal year.

But Government spending this year ran far ahead of a year ago. Uncle Sam spent $7,018,674,135 during July and August this year, compared with $5,215,000,000 for July and August, 1948.

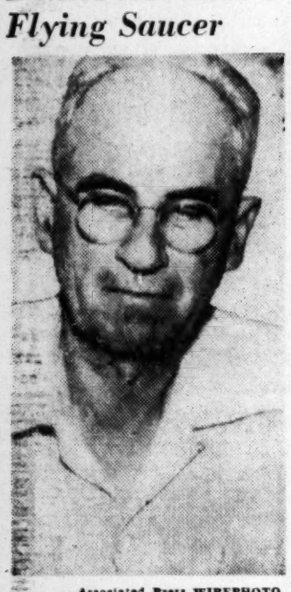
Maryland Plane No Flying Saucer

Denies He Made Flying Saucer



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
JUST TALK—Jonathon E. Caldwell, 66, who invented and built the disc-type plane found abandoned recently in a Glen Burnie, Md., barn, said yesterday the Glen Burnie plane has "absolutely no relation" whatever to any flying saucers reported seen in this country. He is working on the design of another radical plane at Las Vegas, Nev.

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 2 (AP).—"Flying saucers? Not my airplane!"

The man who invented and built a disk-type plane found wrecked and abandoned in a Glen Burnie, Md., barn two weeks ago says it has "absolutely no relation whatever" to any flying saucers that may have been seen in this country from time to time.

An Air Force officer who looked at the Glen Burnie "what-is-it?" expressed belief it is definitely the prototype of the "flying saucer."

"Shucks, I gave that thing up in 1939," Jonathan E. Caldwell, 66-year-old Manhattan Beach, Calif., building contractor and inventor, who formerly lived in Glen Burnie, told a newsman here. "If the Air Force wants to know anything about it they're welcome to whatever I know."

Caldwell said the plane was test-flown by Willard Driggers in 1939, that it was granted an experimental license by the Commerce Department. He said it was powered by a seven-cylinder engine in the nose, was propeller driven and the disk was a safety factor.

Caldwell is working in a small shop here, trying to perfect another radical plane that involves a rotor wing and a safety factor he described as the "cyclogiro," discovered 17 years ago by Dr. Adolph Rohrbach of Berlin.

Caldwell says his plane has been test flown at Oxnard, Calif. It has the conventional type fuselage, but the wings look like water wheels. They are 8 feet in diameter, have six vanes. On either side along the longitudinal area of the fuselage are the two rotor wings, 20 feet long.

Nation Jubilant

Korea Sees Huge Turtle As An Omen

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 2 (AP).—A gigantic turtle, possibly the largest ever caught, gave this Communist-menaced republic an upsurge of spirits today.

The turtle has spirits of its own, too, having downed without a stagger three crocks of wine offered by fishermen who snared it off the south tip of Korea a few days ago.

"It's an omen," President Syngman Rhee enthusiastically told a news conference today.

"It means prosperity for the nation. The turtle is our symbol of longevity and prosperity."

He said the turtle was described as 6 to 7 feet long and estimated by the fishermen to be 1000 years old.

Rhee ordered it brought to the Seoul Zoo and radioed the Korean Embassy in Washington to obtain the latest information on care and feeding of turtles.

While the President seemed rather proud of the way the turtle soberly accepted the fisherfolk's Southern hospitality, he did not think a wine diet was the exclusive answer.

(The United States Interior Department aquarium and the Washington Zoo recommended ocean fish and fish scraps.

(William Mann, director of the Washington Zoo, said that if the turtle actually was 7 feet long, it was a new record, the biggest previously known being one 6½ feet long, at the British Museum.

(Philip Hann, First Secretary of the Korean Embassy in Washington, said he was forwarding all advice received, plus his own suggestion that the raffish old fellow be returned to the sea to live another 1000 years. This is rather unlikely, however, for the Republic is too proud of its prize.)

The President wasn't kidding about the prosperity and longevity omen. It goes far back into Korean folklore and also is bolstered by history.

In 1592 the famous Korean Admiral Yi Sun Sin devised a turtle-shaped ship credited with being the world's first armor-clad vessel.

With a small fleet of these strange craft, he thwarted an invasion by the Japanese dictator, Hideyoshi, ramming and sinking the enemy ships with the great turtle-headed prow while archers fired flaming arrows from beneath the armored carapace. It was 300 years before Japanese seapower recovered.

Rhee did not mention this, but every Korean knows the story and will get the significance.

(In contrast with the Korean respect for the turtle, in China it is the basis for the profane vocabulary and a symbol of cuckoldry and stupidity. Since turtles are supposed to know the weather in advance, it is an insult to ask a Chinese if he thinks it will rain.)

Huge British Airliner Gets Tests Today

Bristol, England, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The Bristol Airplane Co. announced today that taxiing trials of the biggest airliner in the world probably would begin Saturday.

It was believed possible that the 127-ton, eight-engine Brabazon I might make its first flight during the trials.

A special, 8250-foot runway and the biggest hangar in the world have been built at the Bristol plant to accommodate the giant 177-foot plane, which with a sister ship already has cost British taxpayers more than 48 million dollars.

The Brabazon I, powered by eight piston engines developing 20,000 horsepower, will be used as a guinea pig for future models planned for the London-New York run by the British Overseas Airway Corp.

The plane is designed to carry 100 passengers in "steamship comfort" on trans-Atlantic flights. It can carry up to 230 passengers on shorter trips.

Two Children Seriously Hurt In Traffic

Two children were seriously injured by automobiles yesterday in separate accidents as they ran across District streets.

Joseph C. Barker, 2, of 2111 18th st. nw., was admitted to Children's Hospital with head injuries and a possible fractured shoulder suffered when he was struck by an auto while running across Columbia rd. nw., east of Belmont rd. nw.

Police said the child dashed from behind parked cars. No charge was placed against the driver of the auto, Vernon E. Marsteller, 39, of 1619 Glebe rd., Arlington. The accident occurred at 4:10 p. m.

Three-year-old Josephine Marshall of 1957 H st. ne., suffered a broken left leg and possible internal injuries when she ran into the left rear bumper of an auto in the 2000 block of H st. ne.

Driver of the car, Edward P. Thomas, 62, of 2213 Flagler pl. nw., rushed the child to Casualty Hospital, where she was admitted in a serious condition shortly after 8:30 p. m.

GOP Nominee in Va. Assails Spending

Newport News, Va., Sept. 2 (AP).—Walter Johnson, Republican nominee for Governor of Virginia, today branded Federal and State spending of money and bureaucratic rule as "a deadly disease."

"Like a cancer," he asserted in a radio address, "it is eating at and destroying our country and our State."

Mother Killed By Train After 2 Sons Fight

Milwaukee, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Two pugnacious sons will never know whether their mother killed herself because they quarreled.

Several witnesses said today she deliberately ended her life by standing with bowed head in the path of a switch engine. Others said it was an accident.

The engine's fireman, Claude Seebruch, and other witnesses told police that Mrs. Christiana Benedek, 57, appeared to walk deliberately onto the tracks near her rural home last night.

But the sons, Alex, 34, and John, 29, and their father, James Benedek, denied the mother would have killed herself. They said she must have failed to see the engine.

"She didn't take her own life," the father said. "She was upset maybe, and disturbed because the boys were fighting."

The sons, while blaming themselves for the death, said a fight they had last night over a $5 debt led to the tragedy. They had been drinking in a tavern, and when they got home began fighting in their yard. The mother stopped them.

John returned to the tavern and Mrs. Benedek set out after him. On her way she came to the railroad crossing, where several witnesses said she waited until the locomotive was almost upon her, then stepped into its path and bowed her head.

Stofberg to Open Restaurant With Sea Food Broker

Charles Stofberg, special assistant to District Commissioner John Russell Young, will join with J. Wilmer Morris, sea food broker, in establishing a restaurant shortly near the entrance of Griffith Stadium.

Stofberg said Benjamin Wollberg, owner of a tract at 2016 Georgia ave., is erecting a one-story structure there which will be leased for the restaurant. The establishment will specialize in take-out orders of seafood.

The District official has previously leased the land in conjunction with Morris as a parking lot. Stofberg is also partners with John Russell Young, jr., son of the Commissioner, and M. E. Edlavitch in the operation of the Capitol Auto Laundry, 62 H st. ne.

Cupid to Put the Clippers On GIs Long-Flowing Beard

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
Sergt. Kurtzhal, his beaver and his bride.

Fort Lewis, Wash., Sept. 2 (AP).—The wedding went off as scheduled, but the kiss at the end was brief.

The reason was the long, flowing beard and handlebar mustache worn by the bridegroom, Sergt. Merle Kurtzhal, 28, of San Francisco.

The bride, Verna Gregory, 22, had set a condition to the wedding—that the beard come off within two weeks. But the Sergeant still wore it for last night's wedding.

The beard had been the envy of Fort Lewis soldiers since Kurtzhal come here 10 days for reserve training with the 91st Division. After his arrival, the sergeant renewed a friendship with Miss Gregory dating back to 1945. She had been a civilian ward girl at Madigan General Hospital here when Kurtzhal was under treatment for wounds suffered at Cassino, Italy.

The two decided to be married—with the condition attached.

Brig. Gen. C. Lyn Fox, division commander, who gave away the bride, observed:

"I and every other officer of the outfit have failed in a persistent campaign to get those whiskers removed. Then one girl comes along and the sergeant not only surrendered his heart—but his whiskers."

After the ceremony the General paid further honors to the bride who talked the sergeant out of his beard. He made her an honorary member of the 91st.

Navy Fliers Set Pace for Berlin 'Lift

Navy airmen set the pace for the Berlin airlift task force in carrying supplies into the once blockaded city, it was disclosed yesterday.

Figures just made available show that two Navy squadrons of the Military Air Transport Service led all others in ability to deliver goods to the Russian-blockaded German capital.

They reveal that squadron VR-8, from Honolulu, topped all others in efficiency each month that it flew. It was followed by Navy Squadron VR-6.

The services agree that maintenance of planes by ground crews marked the difference. But the Navy says its maintenance was better, man for man, while the Air Force says the Navy simply had more maintenance men per plane.

Some idea of how Air Force men felt about the Navy performance was shown in a letter from Col. R. W. Da Vania, commanding the Air Force Sixth-first Group, to Comdr. J. O. Vosseller, commander of Squadron VR-8.

"You have set a pace unequalled by any task force unit," Da Vania wrote. "The example you have set has inspired younger and less experienced officers of the Air Force units to operational heights beyond imagination."

At the height of the airlift, an efficiency rating was set up to get maximum effort from all squadrons. A five-month comparison between Navy Squadron VR-8 and the top Air Force squadron for each month shows:

December, 1948, VR-8—120, Air Force, —91; January, 1949, VR-8—134, Air Force—125; February, VR-8—121; Air Force, 112; March, VR-8—149, Air Force—120; April, VR-8—155, Air Force—132.

Western Union Co. Sued for $50 Million

Danville, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP).—A self-described "citizen and taxpayer" filed suit today for 50 million dollars against the Western Union Telegraph Co., claiming the company is depriving the Federal Government of postal revenue.

Western Union's operations were described in the suit as "the most glaring raid in all history on the funds and revenues of the United States."

The petition was first filed in Federal Court here July 10, 1947, by Raymond W. Nichols of Morristown, Minn. However, at Nichols request action on it was deferred to permit him to accumulate data. Today it was formally entered in the records of the Federal Court of Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Nichols' petition states Western Union "illegally transmits first class mail without postage."

He charges the company, with headquarters in New York City, is violating the constitutional law whereby the Postoffice is given a monopoly of the mails.

As a result, it continues, the Postoffice has lost more than 50 million dollars in postage revenue through Western Union's "illegal acts."

The petition, in which Nichols, who is 60, described himself as a "citizen and taxpayer," asks the court to enjoin Western Union from "further violations."

Legal observers here said under the law Nichols would get a percentage of any damages imposed on the company as a result of the suit.

Nichols, a salesman, who is acting as his own attorney, did not specify which segment of the telegraph company's activities he felt violated the law.

However, court attaches said they interpreted the petition as objecting to Western Union's use of its wires to transmit written material that, if not sent that way, would be sent by mail.

At New York, Western Union had no immediate official comment.

However, a spokesman commented that Western Union would observe its 100th anniversary in 1951 and "it's rather a late date" to be discovering that it is illegally competing with the United States mail.

He said that such an interpretation also would have to be applied to telephone service and to a messenger boy who bicycled a note from one neighbor to another.

In summary, the ICC stated: "We find that acquisition by Doran S. Weinstein, L. E. Wolfson, Sam W. Wolfson, Saul Wolfson, Cecil Wolfson, J. A. B. Broadwater, E. B. Gerbert, A. J. Rsoenthal and Jack Surasky jointly of control of Capital Transit Co. and Montgomery Bus Lines, Inc., (a CTC subsidiary) through purchase of capital stock of the former, upon the terms and conditions . . . set forth, which terms and conditions are found to be just and reasonable, is a transaction within the scope of Section 5 (2) (a), and will be consistent with the public interest."

Wolfson "Gratified"

Informed in Jacksonville, Fla., of the ICC decision, Louis E. Wolfson told The Washington Post:

"It is needless to say that my associates and I are deeply gratified by the confidence that has been reposed in us by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission in approving our purchase of controlling interest in the Capital Transit Co. of Washington.

"We take this opportunity to assure both commissions, as well as the Washington public, that we will exercise every endeavor within our power to maintain Capital Transit Co. as a foremost factor in the development of the District of Columbia and environs.

"It will be a major objective of our group to cooperate with the other stockholders of Capital Transit and with the excellent officers and employes of that company in providing for the residents of our Nation's Capital the very best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with providing that kind of service.

"We appreciate deeply the expedition and thoroughness with which these necessary proceedings have been handled by both of these commissions."

way, muttering and looking at the ceiling. His mother took him away to give him an aspirin.

When they returned, Moore entreated, "You are thinking only of yourselves, boys. That's selfishness, and you should do as your parents tell you."

Jimmie shouted from the hall, "I am not, but I'm not going to help you out."

At this point, Edward B. Williams, Mrs. Moore's attorney, urged the boys to go with the father, because "it will help your mother."

"It will not," John said. "It will not. It will help him."

Mrs. Moore, who before had urged the boys to leave, said, "They aren't thinking of the court or the suit, they are thinking of how they feel. They are children . . ."

Williams stopped her and Moore walked down the steps. Williams called him back, and ordered Mrs. Moore to leave the room. Jimmie tried to run out, but Williams stopped him.

Again the father asked the boys to come with him, but they turned away crying. When Williams approached them, they said, "Don't push me to him."

Soon, Moore's atorney, Charles Patton Henry, agreed that it was no use trying any longer, and they went away.

Mrs. Moore returned to the room and said:

"Now, do you believe that they wouldn't go with him? What more could I do?"

Strauss Reported Suffering Relapse

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Sept. 2 (AP).—Richard Strauss, German composer, was reported today to have suffered a relapse in his heart illness.

His daughter-in-law said his life was in danger. Strauss recently was reported to be improving. He fell ill in early August.

Police Prepare for Second Robeson Concert

New York, Sept. 2 (NYHT).—Westchester County began mobilizing its forces today to prevent clashes between followers of Paul Robeson and members of veterans' organizations Sunday afternoon when the Negro baritone is scheduled to sing near Peekskill.

The concert is set for 2 p. m. on the old Hollow Brook Golf Course in Cortlandt, four miles north of Peekskill, and about a mile from the picnic ground where a Robeson concert was disrupted last Saturday night when a veterans' demonstration turned into a fight and then a riot. Eight persons were injured, one seriously.

Scheduled for the same hour and in the same area as the second Robeson concert is a mammoth parade by members of 14 Westchester County veterans' units—nine American Legion, three Veterans of Foreign Wars, one Jewish War Veterans and one Catholic War Veterans.

District Attorney George M. Fanelli, who has been ordered by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to investigate Saturday's riot, tried vainly today to dissuade leaders of the veterans' groups from holding the parade. He did exact a pledge to observe "the absolute necessity for preserving law and order." The veterans had disavowed responsibility for last week's riot, saying the participants had acted individually after peaceable, organized demonstration.

Fanelli said after the two-hour meeting in his office in White Plains that the State police would be asked to send as many troops as were available; that Sheriff Fred W. Ruscoe would have 30 deputies at the scene; that 50 Westchester County park police would be sworn in as deputies; and that possibly the emergency civilian force of honorary deputies might be called.

A radio-equipped heliocopter will be sent from the Westchester County airport at Purchase, with Chief William Slater of the Park Police as an observer to direct ground forces where they appead to be needed, Fanelli said.

Missing Boy, Girl Found Smothered

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 2 (AP).—A city-wide search for two small St. Paul children ended last night when their smothered bodies were found in an ice box, stored in a neighbor's garage.

The victims were Franklin Sherer, 5, and Sandra, 2½, for whom Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sherer, the boy's parents, were caring pending her adoption by the family.

Police found Franklin's tricycle in the garage of John Linnerooth, next door to the Sherers. Officers opened the refrigerator to find the children curled up in separate compartments behind tightly closed doors, which could not be opened from the inside.

Asthma Sufferers Look for Relief in "Glycolated Air"

Since Reader's Digest in April, 1948 published an article on the subject it is estimated that more than three million people have enjoyed the benefits of APS Glycol Vapor. Actually, this simple and harmless way of combating air-borne viruses is the result of over ten years of research.

The value of "glycolated air" as a method of preventing colds has now become so widely accepted that asthma sufferers are asking what benefits may be expected for them. A number of these persons, and also hay fever subjects, have reported being helped.

Although making no claims, the group of scientists responsible for the development have agreed upon an unusual money-back offer in order that physicians and asthma victims may avail themselves of a room-type APS Gylcol Vaporizer for test purposes.

Details of this offer and an informative booklet telling about APS Glycol Vapor and its uses will be sent free to anyone writing for them. Simply send your name and address to Health Equipment & Service Corp. 904 Bonifant St., Silver Spring, Md., or call SH. 0782. There is no charge. A penny postcard will do.

44 File Forms To Work on White House

Forty-four contractors, including a woman interior decorator, have filed forms indicating their interest in bidding on the $4,160,000 White House renovation job.

The Public Buildings Administration said yesterday that from this group a list of general contractors will be chosen by the committee on renovating the Executive Mansion to bid on the job.

PBA will then hold competitive bidding with the final approval being given by the commission, of which Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) is chairman.

Thursday was the deadline for submitting the preliminary forms giving information on the prospective bidders' financial standing and ability to perform the work.

The woman interior decorator, from New York, apparently is only interested in the furnishing of the White House.

AF Boots Out 189 At Scott Base in Anti-Crime Drive

By the United Press

The Air Force reported yesterday that 189 airmen have been booted out of the service in the past eight months at Scott Air Force Base, Belleville, Ill., in a campaign against uniformed lawbreakers.

The report was submitted to Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.), who had demanded Air Force action to halt a "crime wave" in the area, which he blamed primarily on military personnel.

Air Force officials replied that a thorough investigation has been conducted, followed by the dismissals of 10 men for bad conduct, 17 for fraudulent enlistment or hiding a prior criminal record, 26 as "undesirables," 108 as "misfits," and 28 miscellaneous dishonorable discharges.

A spokesman said, however, that the total number of dismissals since January 1 was not abnormally high for a base the size of Scott Field, which has a complement of about 10,000 men.

cated with Vaughan about the track.

Want to Be Heard, He Says

Helis said he and his father wished to be heard; that "we cannot further condone or tolerate this baseless attack."

In New Orleans, William T. Burton, Lake Charles, La., oil man, took a shot at another phase of the investigation in which Vaughan had been linked by testimony.

Burton told the Times-Picayune that he had never met Vaughan, had never contributed to political campaigns, and had no knowledge that Vaughan was interested in the Burton income tax case.

This comment resulted from testimony by Columnist Drew Pearson that Vaughan had telephoned a Justice Department official seeking "some intervention in the Burton case."

Further, said Pearson, there had been rumors that large contributions had been made in the 1946 Kansas City primaries "in order to prevent a conviction in the Buton case."

Burton was tried twice in 1943 and 1945 on income tax evasion charges, both resulting in mistrials when the juries failed to agree. Later he was convicted of conspiracy to influence the 1945 jury.

Navy Denies Its Planes Fired on Bay State Boat

No Man's Land Island, Mass., Sept. 2 (AP).—The three-man crew of a fishing boat said today a sea-skimming fighter plane strafed them as they were docked here and showed more than a score of bullet holes to prove it.

But several hours later the identity of the plane was still unknown. Spokesmen for both Army and Navy air bases nearby said their planes hadn't fired a shot in the area—which is restricted for Navy firing practice.

The Hartford, Conn., Courant, however, said gunnery practice by Connecticut Air National Guard planes at the island was called off when pilots saw a small boat at a wharf.

Earlier, Capt. Donald F. Smith, commander of Naval air bases in the First Naval District, disclaimed all responsibility for the Navy.

He said a check of all Navy flight schedules showed the only planes over the island today were out of Quonset, R. I. They returned to their base without firing, however, after finding seven "unscheduled aircraft" over the island, he added.

A spokesman at Quonset said these "unscheduled" planes to which Captain Smith referred were firing live ammunition in the island area.

Gamblers' Telephones

In upholding a tariff of the telephone company providing for removal of telephones used for illegal purposes, the District Public Utilities Commission has followed a recent United States Circuit Court decision in California. The decision amounts to recognition of the paramount right of society to regulate public utilities against improper use. For the telephone has become an indispensable instrument in gambling and bookmaking no less than in most legitimate business. The importance of the telephone as a tool of illegal activity was recognized by District Attorney Fay when he requested the removal of some 300 telephones after a series of gambling raids last spring.

It goes without saying that no one ought to be deprived of telephone service arbitrarily. The telephone company can act only after it has received information from law enforcement officials. The avenue of the courts is always open to persons who protest the contemplated removal of their telephones, and indeed this approach was used in several instances after Mr. Fay's raids. In addition, the PUC has now indicated that it will afford hearings to persons who dispute the legality of telephone company action. The PUC cannot pass on the validity of the evidence of illegal use, but it can make sure that the telephone company is complying with provisions of the tariff.

The important thing is that all persons involved in such proceedings be apprised of their rights of appeal. In practice, the telephone company does not attempt to remove telephones while appeals are pending. The presumption is that if a person does not choose to appeal the action, he does not contest the removal. This seems to us a fair way to guard against capricious removal and at the same time expedite the work of law enforcement agencies.

OEEC: Spur

The Organization for European Economic Cooperation, the central agency for ECA participating countries located in Paris, has acquired a reputation for plain speaking on performance under ECA. The agency not only decides how ECA funds shall be apportioned, but provides a meeting ground for experts whose aim is to hasten recovery by giving sound advice to the aided countries and spurring them to increased efforts. At the beginning of the year the OEEC jolted complacent spirits by pointing out that Marshall Plan countries would still have a trade deficit estimated at three billion dollars when the aid program ended unless more determined efforts were made to increase their exports, develop new sources of domestic supply, and reduce their dependence on imports from dollar countries.

At that time the OEEC indicated that there was need to revise national recovery programs, make greater efforts to integrate the disparate economies of western Europe, and face the fact that sacrifices would be required of the people to emancipate Europe from chronic dependence on American aid. Since then the outlook has darkened. European gold and dollar earnings from exports have declined, and dollar aid has been reduced, while Britain's financial plight has necessitated an increase in her share of the reduced ECA fund. Hence the OEEC, living up to its reputation for plain speaking, has bluntly announced that the dollar problem is not on the way to solution and that, in its opinion, the fundamentals of this problem must be reconsidered at a very early date.

Some American officials are disposed to regard this announcement as maladroit, especially as the ECA appropriation has not yet been approved by Congress—the OEEC's allocations being tentatively based on the figure approved by the Senate. We don't agree. What the OEEC has done is to give the participating nations the same gadfly treatment which Mr. Hoffman has just administered himself. Appropriately, therefore, Mr. Hoffman says that the report is encouraging. It is encouraging, and, in our opinion, most timely, because it shows an awareness of the seriousness of the present situation. Moreover, only a blind man—and Congress is not blind—could fail to realize the gravity of the British crisis, a crisis which differs only in degree from that which faces other ECA countries. The OEEC has performed a real service, therefore, by openly confessing that the situation is rapidly deteriorating and that prompt and positive action is needed to find, or at least work toward, a solution of the problem of how to earn enough dollars to close the gap between dollar imports and dollar exports.

It does not follow that this admission is an appeal for more funds. The emphasis is rather on the need for a new approach to a solution of Europe's trade problems. Mr. Hoffman has pointed the way and added to the pressure contained in the ECA report by announcing on its heels that even if the Senate total is approved by Congress, the OEEC allocation will have to be cut by 150 million dollars. For the ECA intends to put that sum in a special fund to be used to promote reduction of trade barriers, develop overseas projects and finance western European projects "of special international significance." Better late than never!

The Barsov Case

United States military authorities in Austria are said to have proposed that Lieut. Anatol Barsov be held as hostage for the Americans who are now prisoners in the Soviet Zone of Europe. This is a pretty good illustration of how rapid has been the descent of the Western world from the civilization that was formerly its pride. Even a generation ago such a proposal from such a source would have been unthinkable, for it was well understood that the taking of hostages in peacetime was, as Secretary Acheson implied in emphatically rejecting the military request, a practice that the civilized world had outgrown.

It is true, of course, that our present relationship with Soviet Russia can be called peace only by a perversion of language. The fact remains that Barsov, as Secretary Acheson pointed out Thursday, had committed no crime. Thus to have kept him in custody in the hope of striking a bargain for some missing American would have been to deprive him of liberty without due process of law. But it seems to us that precisely the same point might be made about the conduct of this case by the American authorities.

Barsov, you remember, is one of the two Russian fliers who deserted from the Red Army last year and sought asylum with the American forces in Austria. The episode was given a great blaze of publicity, no doubt in the hope of encouraging similar desertions. The fliers were presently taken on a tour of Virginia, made guests of honor at public lunches and banquets. But whether through ignorance of American customs, or through boorishness inculcated by the Soviet system of education, they made a bad impression, and the cordiality soon evaporated.

For some reason Barsov, it is said, decided that he wanted to return to Russia, and to that end entered into negotiations with the Soviet Embassy. Whether this was the result of threats against his person or of reprisals against the family he left in Russia must remain a matter for conjecture. His companion in desertion, Lieut. Pirogov, who wants to remain, said in an interview in New York that Soviet spies had been in touch with Barsov and had forced his decision. Pirogov also said that Barsov had attempted by bribes and threats to persuade him to follow his example.

The arrest of Barsov by FBI agents had attributes of musical comedy, save that the element of comedy was wholly lacking. It is reported that a dozen G-men accompanied Pirogov into a Washington restaurant where he had arranged to meet Barsov; when the latter arrived, they whisked both into the street and, after a scuffle, led them away handcuffed together. A flying wedge of Russian agents is said to have stormed into the restaurant immediately after and conducted a frantic search for the two men. It would appear that Pirogov, acting as a stool pigeon for the FBI, lured Barsov to the rendezvous; and it may be that Barsov, serving the Russians in the same capacity, baited a trap for his erstwhile comrade, Pirogov. The FBI can presumably claim credit for having beaten the Soviet secret police to the punch; but it is difficult to find any other aspect of the incident creditable to any of the parties concerned.

As far as we can make out there was no formal hearing of any kind in connection with Barsov's deportation. The only evidence we have that Barsov did decide of his own free will to return to Russia rests upon statements by (1) the Soviet Embassy (2) Lieutenant Pirogov, and (3) the Department of State. The first source is wholly untrustworthy, the second is questionable, the third is probably reliable. Nevertheless, a dangerous precedent may have been set. The procedure in this case seems uncomfortably similar to practices which are common in the modern police states.

Legion Resolutions

There is a hopeful augury in the American Legion's selection for the first time of a World War II veteran, George N. Craig, as national commander. Since his principal rival for the office was also a veteran of World War II, it may be presumed that the younger generation is now beginning to assert the dominance deserved by its numbers and its youth. Perhaps this will, in due time, serve to modernize the legion's outlook and bring it into touch with the realities and responsibilities of the present. The dead hand of the past is all too apparent in some of the resolutions adopted at the close of the convention Thursday in Philadelphia.

The convention went on record as urging the Federal Government to "take steps to curtail as far as possible any further immigration to this country at the present time." No doubt this was done sincerely, in the name of patriotism. But it was done by men suffering from the delusion that American productivity is limited and that the volume of goods and services available to individuals must be diminished by an increase of the population.

Just the contrary, of course, is true; and the whole history of immigration to this country bears witness to the fact that immigrants have expanded the economy in addition to enriching the culture of the United States. Such an attitude toward the displaced persons of Europe could have come only from callousness respecting their condition and from forgetfulness of the historic role of America as a haven for the oppressed. The younger men now beginning to guide the American Legion will be governed, we hope, by fewer fears and by higher ideals.

"Show Me" On Arms

The subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees charged with the study of MAP recommends a limitation of immediate arms shipments to 100 million dollars while the Atlantic defense organization is pending. Interim arms aid is needed to help some of the European nations, mainly France, to restore some expertness and confidence in their military establishments. The amount is a problem in judgment and in this case we prefer the congressional judgment because of the extravagances and lack of frankness in the Administration's presentation of MAP. There is no justification for the launching of an ambitious and comprehensive arms program ahead of organization. For one thing, to anticipate organization, on the precedent of the Marshall Plan, is to arrest it; for another, even the fundamental ideas about defense organization—whether there shall be one or several—are, it now seems, in process of clarification, and then there remains the task of integration and planning.

Certainly the defense organization of Western Union will have to be overhauled in view of the passage of the Atlantic Pact. And even the European organization which goes by the name of Western Union and the headquarters of which is Fontainebleau is not the neat organization implied by witnesses before Congress. At any rate, the London Times, commenting on the House decision to reduce interim aid to 500 million dollars for the same reason that the Senate subcommittee advanced, has this to say:

> It is in the preparation of these plans (for unity of command) that the real core of the programme resides and it is here that the other Atlantic Pact countries—and, in particular, the members of Western Union—can help the American Administration. There have been, for some time, persistent stories that, beneath the surface at Fountainebleau there are disagreements and disharmony, and the House vote suggests that the accounts of whole-hearted military cooperation taken back from the Western Union countries by the Chiefs of Staff failed to convince many in and out of Congress that these stories are not true. The Washington Post has even said that "the real emergency in Europe is not lack of arms, but lack of unity." The Administration's task would be easier and the worries of Congress without any doubt be fewer if still more positive proof could be given that the American arms which will be sent to Europe under the programme will be used by a really integrated force rather than by a loose confederation.

We hope the Senate will share the approach of the House and that of its own subcommittee to MAP. Nothing would be better calculated to spur the defense chiefs of the Atlantic community to produce a real organization of Atlantic defense.

Firing Line

Better news comes from both Finland and Bolivia on the internal threats, one from the Communists and the other from the Communist-MNR coalition, to their stability. As Finland's Premier Fagerholm foretold, the metalworkers duly went out on strike, the object being to hold up manufacture of goods for delivery on Russia's reparation account. When the reparation schedule was drawn up, the Russians imposed a time table which calls for constant and full employment in meeting it, so that a stoppage of even a week or so would provide the Russians with an excuse for intervention.

Whether the excuse would be used is another matter, but the Finnish government cannot take any chances. Helpful to the general alertness throughout the country is the action of Premier Fagenholm in foretelling and spotlighting Communist moves and aims. His leadership was again put to the test Thursday when the Finnish Diet reassembled after the summer recess. The 35 Communist deputies in a Diet of 200 tried to promote some disorder in support of the striking malcontents but, apparently, with little success. In the meantime the metal workers are reported from Tamperi and Turku to be only partially on strike, and the Social Democrat-dominated Trades Union Federation have already read out of the Federation the striking Communist unions.

The situation in Bolivia is that the La Paz government has recaptured the Party of Cochabamba, the leading city, 150 miles from La Paz, that the rebels under a coalition of Communists and MNR had taken. This is an immense relief. For it was obvious that the Communist-MNR forces were amply provisioned and armed. Whence the rebels were supplied admits of a couple of guesses, viz., Lima or Buenos Aires. The danger in Bolivia should inspire some prompt attention to the problem still unsettled of a collective policy on the recognition of governments brought into power by military coups. Judging from the precipitate way that the United States recognized the juntas in Peru and Venezuela, the State Department would have been put in an awkward dilemma if the MNR had triumphed, and the danger is by no means over, for the Bolivian rebels are continuing their successes in lesser townships. Foreign policy in these days is bedevilled by the need to keep an eye on internal as well as international incidents and repercussions.

"Worth Cum Van Zandt"

I was quite favorably impressed by the temperate thesis advanced in your August 29 editorial "Acheson and Judd." There does seem to be little call for impugning the basic honesty and intelligence of public officials solely by reason of a differing preference for horns of the Chinese dilemma.

It is most unfortunate, however, that so excellent an editorial was commenced with a false note of gratuitous misinformation and insult to public officials no less conscientious than those in the Department of State. I refer to the opening statement that the criticism of Secretary Acheson "was on a par with the underhanded Navy-cum Van Zandt attempt to besmirch the Air Force command."

As I understand the facts with respect to the Air Force matter Cedric R. Worth, a civil service employe in the Navy Department, fleshed out some skeletal rumors from irresponsible sources with some of his personal opinions and delusions, and personally accomplished delivery of a written account thereof to Representative Van Zandt in a manner suggestive of Oppenheim fiction.

Pending development of some creditable indication that Worth spoke for the Navy Department, or, at the very least, that he spoke with the conscious acquiescence of responsible Naval authorities, might it not be better to describe the incident as the "Worth cum Van Zandt attempt to besmirch the Air Force?" Particularly since the only official Navy attitude or action recounted in your columns bespeaks the most aggressive endeavors to ferret out any coconspirators whom Worth may have had, with every indication of stern measures to follow.

H. A. W.

Alexandria.

Editor's Note—Mr. Worth was not a mere "civil service employe in the Navy Department," but the special assistant to the Undersecretary of the Navy. While there is no evidence that his activities had official sanction, it is scarcely conceivable that he could have carried them out without the knowledge of a number of persons within the Navy. Moreover, it is difficult to believe that naval intelligence made a serious effort to locate the author of the "anonymous" document. The whole affair must be appraised in the context of the bitter feeling engendered by the scrapping of the supercarrier.

Exploited Satellites

The break between Stalin and Tito shows that the nature of Soviet Russia's relation to her satellites is simply one of imperialist exploitation. For Tito, like Stalin, is a thoroughgoing Communist. He permits no other party but his own to be legal and, like the Stalinist brand of communism, suppresses completely all rights of free speech, press, and assembly, the right to hold elections after free discussion and with competing candidates, and the right to trial by jury.

But Tito objected to the Russian attempt to keep Yugoslavia in the position of an economic dependent, furnishing cheap raw materials for Russian industry and buying back manufactured products at a substantial profit for the Russian economy. That is why he is denounced so vehemently by the Russians and their henchmen here and by the Communists in the other satellite nations which are nearer to Russia and whose inhabitants are more afraid of the Red army than Tito is.

Battle Of The Drivers

The day before you announced the series on women versus men drivers I had been speaking in praise of your special articles which I regarded as serving the public interest and which, I said, appealed to reason, never to emotions and prejudice. Therefore I am sorry to see The Washington Post stoping to give space to a controversy of this sort.

As long as I can remember, it has been impossible for a woman to read any printed matter written by a man without being insulted. No charge is too fantastic or too unreasonable to be leveled at the whole of womankind, nor when it does contain an element of truth do the authors ever consider that it could with equal justice be ascribed to either sex.

The cause of this invidious campaign of disparagement is plain. Maleness is like an exclusive club, the members of which wish to arrogate to themselves all of the good things of this world. Such calculated ridicule, however, is at best a retreating action; at this point in time they have lost the main battle.

Basically the strife is rooted deep in human nature, as women love men because they do so much for them and men hate women because they owe them so much. As the potentialities of the human race are limitless, it can probably be resolved when men are sufficiently educated and civilized. MARIAN E. SMITH.

Metcalfe's Poems

I submit herewith a vigorous second to Mr. Paul H. Oehser's excellent criticism of James J. Metcalfe's "Portraits" (letter published August 27). "Sentimental, vacuous, . . . nauseating tripe" is indeed what they are, and I am delighted that Mr. Oehser has been public-spirited enough to say so with such vigor.

I'm only an average man, Mr. Editor, and I feel that it is for people like myself that Mr. Metcalfe is writing. Not necessarily for those "whose literary judgment is often weighed if violent." Mr. Oehser should not condemn James Metcalf's "Portraits" but he should teach his family better table manners and language that is fittin'." Thanks for publishing "Portraits."

Living Memorial

Malvina Lindsay, in her column of August 31, sharply brings up the point of the futility of the hunks of stone memoralizing the war dead.

Much more inspiring and of spiritual significance would be a museum of living art and library housing the creative efforts of contemporary artists and writers, a section of handicrafts, ceramics, textiles, etc. This would be a moving, vital force by which the living would work to keep alive the memory of those dead who fought for their peace—a continuity of living creation.

"Acheson And Judd"

In your August 29 editorial, "Acheson and Judd," you state that the secret report of the Military Intelligence Service on Chinese Communists prepared in 1944-45 "turns out to have been in line with State Department policy, not opposed to it." Having read this intelligence report as reprinted in the Congressional Record. I consider your statement not only misleading but completely false.

The assumption is that we are comparing this military report with State Department policy in the immediate postwar period, not the policy that developed after the department finally realized from its European experience that any appeasement program of Communists could only lead to disaster for principles of democratic government.

For at least two years (as set forth in exhausting detail in the White Paper on China, pp. 59—225) the State Department did everything within reason to force the Nationalists to bring the Communists into the government of China. During most of Hurley's Mission and all of Marshall's the MIS intelligence report was available with two of its important conclusions summarized as follows: "(1) The democracy of the Chinese Communists is Soviet democracy. (2) The Chinese Communist movement is part of the international Communist movement, sponsored and guided by Moscow." Nothing in this report would lead one to believe that the Chinese Communists were innocent "agrarian reformers" who could democratically be made a harmless part of a coalition government.

On what possible basis, therefore, can anyone claim that this conclusion of the intelligence report is "in line" with the State Department policy of that time, and for the succeeding two years, that the Communists would be satisfied with their proportionate representation in the government of China. It wasn't until after the debacle of Czechoslovakia that the State Department seemed to wake up to the futility of appeasing Communists.

ROBERT H. KRANICH.
Bethesda.

Editor's Note—The statement objected to was a paraphrase of Secretary Acheson's reply to the charge of falsifying the record on China. Mr. Acheson said: "The report of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department entitled The Chinese Communist Movement dated July, 1945, states the fact, of which the department was always aware, that the Chinese Communists were Communists. It also states that 'some of the Communist observers go so far as to predict the ultimate ascendancy of the Chinese Communists in China if the present reactionary groups in Chungking are allowed to continue in power.' It fully confirms the views of the department that the conduct of the ruling clique in the Kuomintang had caused the government to lose its popular following. It confirms the view expressed in the White Paper that during the war against China the government in Chungking was devoting more attention to strengthening its internal position than to fighting the common enemy. It states that 'unity between the Chinese political parties is the key to the solution of China's problems.' It argues in favor of an agreement between the Chinese Nationalist government and the Soviet Union."

Uncle Sam's Chessmen

Surprise Moves

"IF I WERE starting out again, I certainly wouldn't go into Government," remarked the 50-year-old "public servant."

"Don't tell me you're one of the 135,000 getting their 30-day notices!" exclaimed the man who worked for a big corporation.

"No, but I know a 20-year service man with a lot on the ball who is. Now in private industry—"

"Just a minute! Don't forget private industry has laid off a big part of the four million now out of jobs. And what about the 15 million jobless in 1933?"

"But at least your company's not up for congressional appropriation every year. It's not always having shifts of agencies and reorganizations that may cut off employes' advancement they've worked toward for years or even wipe out their jobs."

"But we have our yearly budgets and every few months we have efficiency experts or management consultants swarming over the place deciding to change this or cut off that. We have new supermen arriving constantly to cut costs and boom profits. We have 'idea' men shouting we must have change—change, any kind of change to prove we're going places."

"YOU DON'T have Congress on your neck. I'm not saying there shouldn't be efficiency and economy in Government. But there ought to be some way of valuing and holding on to good brains and skill when you get 'em. We always lose some of our best people in these mass firings."

"I grant the Government's weak there. Industry's a little better in picking and developing the technically efficient. It's just beginning now to look for something more—call it potentiality, character, or what you will—and that's harder."

"At least it's trying to do something about the individual. In Government you're a cog in a wheel—"

"Here now, don't draw that one on me! I hear it a dozen times a day at Booster Bros. You hear it in every big business and that's what government is. Why, man, the big problem in labor-management relations everywhere boils down to that!

"But take that report of the commission from the Federal Employe Mental Hygiene Clinic. It told how Government workers suffer from insecurity, frustration, worry, how they have to go through this strain of efficiency ratings and budget appropriations. Then they've had this loyalty investigation, and all its rumors, gossip, whispering and finger pointing. They have all this red tape to go through to get anything done—"

"Say, I'll match the number, color, size, shape of the memos in my office with those of any Government department."

"Then in Government we have all this office politics and grapevine—"

"I'll match Booster Bros. office politics with any you can dig up."

"Well, your office has more efficient help than mine. You can hire and fire as you please."

"YES — WITHIN limits. There's the question of finding this efficient help. That was true even in the 1930s. By the way, do you happen to know a file clerk who's ambitious to be a really good file clerk—for six months at least—instead of the office manager?"

"Frankly I don't. But I still maintain you don't have the deadweights in industry we do. You certainly don't have in the upper brackets the fourflushers and huckster types who flock in at every emergency or even change of Administration as experts, consultants, special assistants to assistants, and make a big show at conferences and cocktail parties, while the drab Government officials, as they call us, keep on doing the work."

"What firm ever lacked them—though I admit the Government has the monopoly."

"I know you don't have this—and it's the toughest thing of all on Government morale—I mean being vilified by the public and Congress, called drones, bureaucrats, loafers. Why no sooner had this cut of the military agencies been announced than everybody, including Congressmen, began to refer to it as pruning of 'drones.'"

"You've got something there. That and the nagging and abuse some Government officials must take from Congress. However, there's one thing you have that I haven't. You're working for your country. I'm working for Booster Bros. Now I believe in their product all right and they've been fair enough to me. But somebody has to go into Government if the country's to be kept going. Every day you have the satisfaction of knowing you've helped keep its wheels going, that you've done something for the American people."

"Well . . . maybe that's true. Only I wish my employers would give me a pat on the back occasionally instead of so many brickbats."

"Pooh Bah McCarran"

Noting your August 30 attack on Senator McCarran in connection with his deliberate handling of the DP bill, I will venture to say that in his stand on this matter the Senator is much more representative of the American people than The Washington Post is.

After all, the Senator is representing an American point of view. Whose point of view is The Washington Post representing?

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Natural Gas And Public Interest

WITH THE House off on a vacation and the Senate about to go, leaving behind a good bit of its work, it might be well to consider the plight of a public servant with a long and honorable record who has been forced to take a vacation without pay through the whole summer. Since June 22 Leland Olds of the Federal Power Commission has been off the payroll although two weeks earlier he was nominated by President Truman for a third term on the commission.

Childs

Not until a few days ago did Senator Ed Johnson, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, get around to naming a subcommittee to hold hearings on the Olds nomination. No date has been set for those hearings and the likelihood is that the sit-down strike of the nomination will continue.

There are lots of reasons why the committee should shut the door against Olds. Through his long career he has frequently made himself unpopular with powerful interests by taking the side of the public against the private utilities. Furthermore, he knows the technique of utility regulation inside and out and with the two present members of the power commission he has made a majority for stricter supervision.

In particular, Olds has stuck by his belief that under a ruling of the Supreme Court the FPC was required to regulate producers of natural gas and fix a fair rate for their product. Olds contends that regulation in the interests of the millions of consumers of natural gas cannot be effective unless it begins with the producer. If the producer can charge what the traffic will bear, then the regulation of the distribution of natural gas would seem to be a pretty empty process.

BY TAKING this stand, Olds has come into head-on collision with Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, who is a very determined citizen. Just recently Kerr took a leading part in the fight to restore Federal funds for public power transmission lines from the Southwest Power Authority. That power will greatly benefit Oklahoma.

But he insists that the producers of natural gas, and he is one of the larger producers and a millionaire many times over as a result of his oil and gas interests, have the right to sell their raw material in the free market at the best price they can get. Kerr has introduced a bill to take natural gas producers out from under FPC regulation. He has told Senate colleagues that he will do everything in his power to block Olds, who has publicly opposed the Kerr bill.

What is involved here is bigger than most people realize. The use of natural gas in cities throughout the country has grown by leaps and bounds in recent years.

By the last accurate count of the FPC there were 4,755 towns and cities using natural gas, and this meant 34,577,392 consumers. Since that date at least 250 communities have begun to use natural gas.

For the first time in its history New York City is getting natural gas and mixing it with manufactured gas. The Washington area with its greatly increased population now uses nothing but natural gas. An increase in the field price of gas would be felt immediately by consumers in almost every part of the country.

CHAIRMAN Johnson named as head of the subcommittee Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas. Coming from a State that produces large quantities of natural gas, Johnson of Texas could hardly be expected to favor regulation of the producers or the confirmation of an appointee who advocates that regulation.

In spite of strong pressure on him to reconsider the nomination of Olds, President Truman has indicated he will not back down. If, as now seems probable, the Senate does not act before adjournment, the President will almost certainly give Olds a recess appointment and he will go back to work after an enforced and payless vacation of several months.

That was the procedure followed by the White House last year when the Senate adjourned without acting on the nomination of Thomas C. Buchanan to be a member of the power commission. In June of this year after Buchanan had served nearly a year without benefit of the Senate's blessing, that chamber finally got around to confirming him.

The least that Olds has a right to expect in view of his long Government service, it seems to me, is reasonably quick action on the nomination. If he were to be turned down then with his broad background and knowledge he would undoubtedly find employment outside the Government. And we who are consumers have a right to expect that in this submerged controversy the point of view of millions now dependent on natural gas is fairly and thoroughly presented.

who have examined the documents said they were "sharply different" in content.

One gave what seemed to be a "genuine" account of Barsov's early impressions of America, his scenic tour of Virginia with his fellow Russian deserter, Peter Pirogov, and many references to whisky drinking and the condition of his heart.

In contrast, the second appeared to be an "anticapitalistic chant written in the language of the Moscow radio," one informant said.

"It compares democracy with communism—and gives all the edge to the latter," the informant added.

It was speculated that this second document may have been written at the direction of Russian agents after Barsov "repented" and contacted the Soviet Embassy here about the possibility of returning to his homeland.

Such a "plant," it was said, could have been used as a powerful propaganda weapon against the United States if the Soviet agents had beaten United States operatives to Barsov in the cloak-and-dagger affair.

Another explanation advanced was that Barsov wrote the passages voluntarily with the idea that it would prove to Russian authorities that he genuinely believed communism is better than democracy.

The penciled blasts against capitalism were scrawled on a small, coverless notebook in which Barsov apparently had been doing simple exercises in translation—common phrases in English with the Russian equivalent.

The diary was the same one Barsov used during his week-long tour of Virginia last February. Correspondents who accompanied Barsov and Pirogov on that trip recognized autographs Barsov had gotten from various Virginians who played host to the pair.

The tone of the diary was complimentary to the United States. Barsov wrote of his pleasures on seeing his first American department store and his first baseball game. He said he found the coeds at Sweetbriar College "very nice."

However, persons who glimpsed this diary said some sections were so obscene they are unprintable.

Barsov and Pirogov flew a Russian plane into the United States occupation zone of Austria last October. They said they were disillusioned with Soviet life and wished to go to the United States. They were permitted to enter this country in February.

Last Tuesday, the Soviet Embassy here announced that Barsov had been "missing" for several weeks, that earlier, in July, he had visited the embassy, reclared he "repented" his desertion and wished to return to Russia.

Five hours later the State Department explained the mystery. Barsov's visits to the embassy were known to this Government. As a result, agents took him into custody August 17 in a 16th st. restaurant. He was moved to Ellis Island, and then to Austria. Upon his own insistence, he was given over to Russian authorities in Austria on Wednesday.

Pirogov, his companion in the flight from Russia, is remaining in this country.

Travel Tax Rule Hits Cheaters

By The Associated Press

The Government ruled yesterday that the 15 per cent tax on passenger transportation tickets applies to funds sent to Canada or Mexico for the purchase of tickets ordinarily subject to the tax.

The announcement was made by George J. Schoeneman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in an effort to stop what has been described as a growing practice of evading the transportation tax.

The situation is this:

It is possible to buy an air line ticket, for instance, in Canada for transportation between two United States points, such as between Washington and Chicago. No tax is levied because United States tax laws do not apply in Canada.

Many Americans living near the Canadian border, especially, have been buying tickets at Canadian transportation offices and thus escaping the tax.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue ruling applies not only to Canada and Mexico but to any other country to which funds may be sent by mail or telegraph or through arrangements with travel bureaus and transportation offices.

Schoeneman held that the United States tax applies to "payments" made here, and that such mail or telegraph orders constitute payment in this country.

Revenue officials said it is not illegal for Americans to send money for ticket purchases, but it is illegal for the seller to furnish them. It is not illegal for Americans to go to Canada, for instance, and buy the tickets in person.

Officials admitted that enforcement of the ruling would be difficult.

One-legged Nathaniel Nickens, 24, of 21 Randolph pl. nw., was held for action of the grand jury yesterday after an inquest by a coroner's jury into the fatal stabbing of Amos Wade, 20, of 20 Florida ave. ne.

Police said Nckens told them he stabbed Wade in the chest after the latter struck him with a bottle during an argument in the Freedom Cafe, 1832 14th st. nw., at about 12:56 a. m.

Wade hailed a cab and had himself driven to Garfield Hospital. He was pronounced dead there at 1:10 a. m. Nickens was treated at Freedmen's Hospital.

NLRB Allows Big Back-Pay Settlement

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A back-pay settlement amounting to $205,000 for 1326 illegally discharged cannery employes was approved yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The settlement was one of the largest ever obtained by the NLRB. Previous back pay settlements cost Republic Steel $1,600,000; Ford Motor Co., $230,000.

Involved in the cannery settlement were 36 California canning companies, the AFL Teamsters Union and the CIO Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers. The firing of the employes and the resultant litigation were outgrowths of a continuing battle between the AFL and CIO unions for the right to represent some 32,000 West Coast cannery employes.

The settlement, on the face of it, is a victory for the FTAW, but seemingly only a temporary triumph. The NLRB, which has ruled out two previous elections, will conduct a third election September 6 among the cannery workers to determine whether or not they wash to have the Teamsters Union as their bargaining agency.

The Food, Tobacco, and Agricultural Workers has been banned from the election because, until recently, the union's officers refused to sign the non-Communist affidavit as required by the Taft-Hartley Act. Unions failing to fulfill this provision of the law are barred from NLRB elections. Observers believe that, barring an upset, the cannery workers will make the Teamsters Union their bargaining agent.

The FTAW is one of a dozen unions which make up the CIO's left wing, and whose officers backed the Wallace third party movement. It also opposed American sponsorship of the Marshall Plan.

The Teamsters Union, with about a million members, is one of the largest in the country and one of the most powerful affiliates of the AFL. The FTAW has less than 50,000 members. Its leadership has come under attack by the CIO's right wing for failure to show signs of growth.

The 1326 workers who will share the $205,000 back-pay were dismissed by the 36 companies back in 1946 after the firms had signed a closed shop contract with the AFL Teamsters in defiance of an NLRB order.

Deputies' Deadlock Laid To 'Extreme Demands'

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—The British Foreign Office today said Russia's "extreme demands" were responsible for a Big Four deadlock on an Austrian independence treaty.

The deadline for agreement by the Deputy Foreign Ministers assigned to write the treaty expired yesterday with nine articles of a 59-clause treaty still unsettled.

A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference today Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin who is Russian deputy at the talks—had complained informally to a British representative, Hector McNeil, that "the West appears reluctant to conclude a treaty for Austria."

"In making this charge, Mr. Zarubin put forward no concrete proposal for breaking the deadlock in the talks," the spokesman said. "The deputies' failure to make progress is the result of Russia's unwillingness to retreat from her extreme demands on Austria."

East Coast Dock Strike Threatens

New York, Sept. 2.—Leaders of some 65,000 East Coast longshoremen turned down a proposed 13-cent-an hour wage cut today and threatened to strike September 30.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longhoremen's Association (AFL) said the men will walk out unless they get a wage increase.

Ryan said the cut proposed by the New York Shipping Association is ridiculous and insulting.

The strike threat was voiced by the union's 120-member negotiating committee. It demanded that the present $1.88 base pay of dock workers be raised to $2.10.

Other demands include $3.15 an hour for overtime, double time for work performed during meal hours, and a pension system paid for by employers.

Every major port from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va., would be affected by the threatened strike.

Four Hosiery Mills Struck on Pay Cut

Philadelphia, Sept. 2 (AP).—Workers at four full-fashioned hosiery mills struck today in protest against what their union president said was a demand for a 30 per cent wage reduction.

Plants affected are the Industrial Hosiery Mills, Mohnton, Pa.; Temple Full-Fashioned Hosiery Mills, Temple, Pa.; Danita Hosiery Manufacturing Co., Newark, Del., and Pagoda Knitting Mills, Reading, Pa.

By The Associated Press

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers used to tell the operators: "No contract, no work." Now operators are saying: "No contract, no royalty payments."

The royalty payments—20 cents on every ton of coal mined—go to finance welfare benefits and retirement payments for the miners. About 100 million dollars a year is passing into and out of the fund.

John C. Call, attorney for the Southern Coal Producers Association, disclosed yesterday that a "substantial number" of coal mine operators did not make the payments normally falling due August 20. Other operators' representatives confirmed that many companies were withholding the payments, but they declined to estimate the extent of the movement.

Southern operators say their contract with the UMW expired June 30. Northern and Western operators figured their contracts continued until August 14, because of a Taft-Hartley law requirement 60 days' notice be given before a contract is terminated. Lewis had asked for negotiations with them June 14.

The Southern operators had served notice on Lewis in April the old contract was expiring June 30 and that they wanted to talk about a new one.

So far no new contract has been reached in any area.

There appears to have been no general action by the Southern Coal Producers Association to withhold the welfare payments, but members were reported to have been advised by their lawyers they were under no legal obligation to pay the royalty after June 30.

On that date, Lewis abandoned the union's traditional "no contract, no work" policy and set a three-day work week for UMW members pending negotiation of a new contract.

5 of 6 Counts in Segregation Suit Dismissed by U. S. Judge

Five of six counts in a damage suit charging racial discrimination at Washington National Airport dining room in 1948 have been dismissed by Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan in Alexandria District Court.

The other count, charging Air Terminal Services, Inc., with failure to maintain equal eating places for white and Negro persons at the airport, will go on trial.

In a memorandum opinion entered Thursday, Judge Bryan dismissed four counts which challenged the validity of segregation with the comment: "Segregation is not violative of the Federal Constitution or of any Act of Congress. Each charge had been brought against ATS. He dismissed a fifth count against Eastern Airlines, but refused to dismiss the sixth.

The suit was brought in February, 1948, before the present non-segregation policy went into effect. Mrs. Helen Nash, 1330 13th st. nw., who filed the suit, said she was a passenger on an Eastern Airlines plane which was delayed at Washington. The airline offered to buy the passenger's dinner, but she was refused service in the white dining room.

$58,000 Sought

She asked a total of $58,000 damages—$10,000 from the air line for not warning her of the segregation policy, and $48,000 from ATS for not serving her. In the one count still before the court she asks $10,000.

Judge Bryan observed that when the suit was filed segregation was enforced at the airport by order of the Civil Aeronautics Administrator.

Virginia law requires segregation in eating establishments, the judge stated.

The charge of inequality of eating places for white and Negro persons, was a different matter, the judge said.

ATS contended it was not obligated to serve anyone and could refuse service without cause.

Such a stand would be "sound" in regard to private restaurants operated on private property, the judge said—but not in this case where the restaurant is operated on public property in a building built at public expense, and owned by the Federal Government.

"In effect,' he stated, "the concessionaire here is conducting the facility in the place and stead of the Federal Government . . . its restaurants are too close, in origin and purpose, to the function of the public government to allow them the right to refuse service without good cause."

Rights Violated

Despite the fact that segregation itself was lawful, he ruled, Mrs. Nash's constitutional rights had been violated if it is proved that ATS failed to provide Negro eating facilities "substantially equal" to those for white persons.

The judge dismissed the charge against Eastern Airlines with the comment that its action was "too removed and too remote to be considered as causing . . . injury to the plaintiff."

It was Judge Bryan who last January upheld the validity of a CAA order banning segregation in dining rooms at the airport.

Navy to Open B-36 Smear Probe Tuesday

Comdr. Thomas D. Davies, widely known Navy flier, will be the first witness quizzed by a Navy court of inquiry Tuesday when it opens public hearings in its probe of the anonymous B-36 smear document.

The three-man "grand jury," headed by Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, is charged with determining whether anyone in the Navy collaborated with Cedric R. Worth, suspended special assistant to Undersecretary of the Navy Dan Kimball, in the preparation of the document.

Worth admitted writing and circulating the paper, which charged high defense officials with wrongdoing in B-36 procurement. Taking full responsibility for the document, he confessed there was no basis for his charges.

Davies's name, however, was mentioned several times during the House Armed Services Committee investigation into the matter. Worth said the officer gave him some of the material which was contained in the document and accompanied him on a visit to see the Baltimore plane manufacturer, Glenn Martin, to get more. Davies, who lives at 4827 Sedgwick st. nw., was the pilot of the big Navy patrol plane, "Truculent Turtle," which set a distance record in a postwar flight across the Pacific.

Wave Chief Yeoman Virginia Charles, Worth's secretary, also will be questioned Tuesday, the Navy said. The court's sessions will be held in Room 3601 Main Navy Building, opening at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Noted Russian Biologist in New DP Group

By the United Press

Dr. Michael Novikov, 73-year-old Russian-born professor who once was director of the University of Moscow, arrives in New York Sunday to begin life anew as a bookkeeper.

He is accompanied by his wife, Valentina, also 73, and five other members of a family group that spans four generations from the Novikovs to their 16-month-old great grandson, Alexey Getmanov.

They are among 816 displaced persons aboard the Army transport General Stewart, which is bringing them from Europe to new homes in the United States.

The Novikov-Tibrov-Getmanov family, sponsored by the professor's cousin, Bishop Ivanov Seraphim of the Holy Trinity Monastery in Jordanville, N. Y., will be resettled on the farm of Dr. Alex Erickson near Vernon, N. J.

Novikov will be employed as Erickson's bookkeeper while his son, Vladimir, 43, and his son-in-law, Anatol Tibrov, 53, will work as farm hands.

Born in Moscow in 1876, Novikov was a member of the Russian Parliament at Petersburg during the rule of Czar Nicholas II. He also had been an official of the International Red Cross, acting president of the English-Russian Society of Moscow, and dean and rector of Moscow University.

Jailed in the revolution, he later was expelled from the university job—and from Russia—along with 70 other professors.

During the last 16 years, he has lectured, taught and conducted research in scores of universities throughout Europe. Biology is his specialty.

Robinson, Marine Corps Inspector General, will be promoted to the major generalcy caused by Hermle's retirement, it was said. Col. Randolph M. Pate, chief of staff, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., is being advanced to brigadier general at the same time.

The Gallup Poll

Keep Schools Open All Year, Say 4 in Every 10 in Survey

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 2.—Should the public schools be kept open all year, with pupils spending the summer working on arts and skills?

This idea met with great favor from teachers at a conference this summer at the University of New Hampshire.

What school children would think of going to school in summer has not been determined. As for adults, as many as four in every 10 questioned in a national survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion say they favor this novel proposal. An additional group thinks it would be a good idea provided attendance during the summer were purely voluntary.

Here are the results of the survey

"It has been suggested that the public schools keep open the year 'round and have pupils spend the summer months with work on arts and skills—such as mechanical training, woodwork, cooking, sewing, etc. What is your opinion?"

Favor	39%
Oppose	55
No Opinion	6

The opposed were asked:

"Would you favor it if it were put on a voluntary basis?"

Yes	34%
No	18
No Opinion	3
	55%

As proposed at the New Hampshire conference of teachers in July, the plan calls for 11 months of school and one month's vacation for both students and teachers. During the summer arts and crafts would be emphasized—the theme being "fun" rather than homework.

An advantage to teachers would be that teachers' salaries would be for 12 months with vacation rather than for the present nine months.

"The 12-month school is surely on the way," says Dr. Frazer Banks, chairman of the National Communism on Teacher Education. "I think it will be valuable to the entire teaching profession."

Gervasi Revisits Cassino, 5½ Years Later

Gervasi

On March 15, 1944, Post correspondent Frank Gervasi watched Allied bombers pulverize the Italian town of Cassino and its famous monastery. He returned recently to find the city rebuilt, but the Abbey still being reassembled like a giant jigsaw puzzle.

His description of Cassino in 1949 and the feeling prevalent there toward the U. S., make interesting reading. See Section II in Sunday's Post.

Radio Aids Spread Of Religious Faith

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Religious leaders in increasing numbers are finding in radio a powerful means of reaching both churchgoers and the millions who claim no church membership.

Last year Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths used radio broadcasts to aid them in their annual appeals for funds for relief. The Protestant Episcopal Church sponsored a series of dramatic programs aimed specifically at the Nation's unchurched persons.

In Greater Washington, radio listeners may hear a wide variety of religious broadcasts. The seven major stations (WMAL, WRC, WOL, WINX, WEAM, WWDC and WTOP) alone offer more than 40 such programs on Sunday, and the seven daylight stations carry many more.

Nearly every major denomination is represented on the Sunday religious program schedule, which includes broadcasts ranging from full church services and devotional talks to familiar hymns and spirituals and dramatic presentations.

Many Are Network Programs

Many of the broadcasts are network programs which originate in other cities. Others are carried from local studios or direct from the churches. In most cases the programs are offered as a public service by the stations, although some of them are sponsored by specific church groups.

Two Jewish programs are presented on Sunday. The Message of Israel, broadcast from the Central Synagogue in New York, is caried by WMAL at 10 a. m. Station WRC carries The Eeternal Light, dramatizations of Jewish legends and customs, at 12:30 p. m.

Among Roman Catholic programs are the Ave Maria Hour on WWDC at 7 p. m. featuring dramatizations of the lives of the saints and the Hour of St. Francis, also a dramatic program, with Hollywood stars, carried by WINX at 10 p. m.

Other Services

In addition, Catholics may hear Faith in Our Time over WOL at 8:15 a. m., the Hour of Faith on WMAL at 11:30 a. m., and the Catholic Hour at 6 p. m. over WRC.

Two Christian Science broadcasts are carried by local stations, one at 9:45 a. m. over WOL, the other at 10:15 a. m. over WEAM.

Outstanding network religious programs are the Church of the Air, WTOP at 10:30 a. m., the service from the great Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City over WTOP at 11:30 a. m., the Lutheran Hour over WOL at 12:30 p. m. and Hightlights of the Bible over WRC at 10 a. m.

Local Services

Services from several local churches may also be heard over Washington stations. These include broadcasts from Calvary Methodist Church in Arlington at 11 a. m. over WEAM, from Fourth Presbyterian Church on WOL at 11:30 a. m., from Centennial Baptist at 11:35 a. m. over WWDC, from the Full Gospel Tabernacle over WWDC at 6 p. m. from Metropolitan Baptist Church over WWDC at 8 p. m., and from the National Pentecostal Holiness Church over WINX at 7:30 p. m.

In addition, radio listeners may hear the Hour of Power from the Central Union Mission over WMAL at 9 a. m., Good News, under the auspices of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Takoma Park at 8:45 a. m., and a Salvation Army program at 11:15 p. m. over WWDC.

Understanding Called Theme Of Labor Day

Labor Day messages to the churches were issued this week by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Issued by the Federal Council's Department of Church and Economic Life, the Protestant message will be read in many churches Sunday. The Catholic message was written by the Rev. R. A. McGowan, director of the Social Action Department of NCWC.

In the Federal Council message, Christians are urged to seek "a more intimate and sympathetic understanding of the conditions and just aspirations of all working groups; and then to apply that understanding, rather than ill-formed prejudices, in their judgment and actions as citizens on issues that involve labor's rights and responsibilities."

Statesmanship Asked

Father McGowan stressed in his message that "we must understand the meaning of individual dignity and the common brotherhood of man for which Christ died, then effectively apply what they mean in work and ownership during our century."

In America, the priest said, holiday emphasize human and direct relations of employers and labor ahead of their relationship to government.

"Economic statesmanship," he stated, "does not begin in government. It begins in the people and their own economic organizations . . . (it) is plain ordinary human decency, regard for human rights and human duties, plain morality in work and ownership, and in the relationships of those who work and those who own."

Although the church "must never forsake its basic interest in individuals . . . the times demand that it give increasing attention to group action, group morality and group responsibility in our economic life," the message says.

"Humility and Justice"

Religious and ethical values of those in the ranks and leadership of labor will determine whether Christian principles will have first place in labor's program, whether labor leaders will exercise Christian humility and justice, and whether they will put public interest above special interest, it continues.

These values which Christianity puts first cannot be realized by preaching and the printed word alone, but must be taken wherever people live and work, it continues, asserting that the "mission at the churches cannot be separated from the restless masses of humanity who seek justice and freedom."

Airmen Begin 3-Day Races at Cleveland Today

Cleveland, Sept. 2 (AP).—An airmen's invasion turned this city into an airport annex today in anticipation of the National Air Races three-day program, starting Saturday.

A B-36 type propeller turned slowly at a downtown intersection, model planes and flying gear-filled store windows. Grease-spotted jackets and coveralls topped by big-billed caps were everywhere.

The Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the world body for sport flying, the Personal Aircraft Council, National Aviation Trades Association, Racing Pilots, Women Pilots and other groups held meetings.

Perhaps the quietest spot was the huge Municipal Airport, where about three dozen crews puttered and polished in preparation for the start of competition.

Sargent House

Dr. Glenn Moves Into New Rectory

The Rev. Dr. Leslie Glenn, rector of historic St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, this week moved into the church's new rectory at 925 Farragut Square.

The rectory, which will be known as Sargent House, is the first permanent rectory St. John's church has had since 1890, when the old rectory at 821 16th st. nw., was converted into a parish office.

Since then clergy of the church have lived in various houses in the city obtained for them by the vestry.

Sargent House was willed to the church by Miss Helen Louise Sargent, lifelong member of St. John's who died last October.

Miss Sargent's parents, Captain and Mrs. Nathan L. Sargent built the house in 1882. Captain Sargent had served as a Naval attache in Europe and the house is filled with objects which he gathered in his travels.

Dr. Glenn, who has been on vacation since early in July, will return to his pulpit for services on Sunday.

Defiant Priest Plans Direct Plea to Pope

THE REV. LEONARD FEENEY, . . . still defiant.

Boston, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The fiery Jesuit priest who led some 65 young Catholics in a crusade against church authorities refused to abandon his charges of "heresy" today, despite a severe rebuke from the Vatican.

Penniless, stripped of his priestly powers by his archbishop, and censured by the Vatican's Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office, the Rev. Leonard Feeney said he would try to travel to Rome to make a personal appeal to Pope Pius XII.

The 52-year-old priest and poet was supported in his stand by his 10 fellow faculty members and 55 students at St. Benedict Center in nearby Cambridge—headquarters of the crusade against the "heresy" that there can be salvation outside the Catholic Church.

Members Attend Classes

All members of the center, including six couples whose scheduled weddings were prevented by an interdict against the group, attended classes as usual today, despite the Holy Office warning that maintaining their stand would be "at the peril of their souls."

Father Feeney said he and his "boys and girls" were confident the Pope ultimately will uphold their contention that American Catholics are being led into "heresy" by religious leaders who try to "sugar-coat' their faith with "liberalism."

He said his rebuke by the Holy Office in a letter to Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston was not an infallible pronouncement of Catholic doctrine, and he accused archdiocesan authorities of withholding parts of the document.

Parts of the letter were published last night in the Pilot, official organ of the Boston archdiocese.

"If the Holy See had a decree to make it would be pronounced as such, not quoted in part in a newspaper," Father Feeney said.

"Pronouncement" Denied

"The archdiocese is trying to give the impression that the Holy See came out with a definite pronouncement—which it didn't."

Despite the fact the Pilot said the Pope approved the Holy Office letter, Father Feeney said the document lacked the technical requisites of a ruling on the correct Catholic dogma.

If he can raise the money for a trip to Rome, he said, he will seek an official decree from the Pope.

"I don't know how I'll be able to make the trip," he said, adding that the interdict that Archbishop Cushing placed on the center several months ago caused many of his followers to lose their jobs and cost him all his financial support.

From Hand to Mouth

"I have a hard job getting something to eat at times," Father Feeney said. "It's just living from hand to mouth—but St. Benedict Center will persist in its doctrinal crusade."

"Father Feeney said even the rebuke from the Holy Office failed to deter him and his followers.

"We take great courage from the fact that the great Catholic saint and doctor of the church, St. Athanasius, was exiled five times and excommunicated by every bishop in the East for holding out alone for Catholic doctrine," he said.

Camp Site May Date to 12,000 B. C.

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Extensive remains of a primitive group of hunters, who roamed the American West thousands of years before Christ's birth, have been unearthed near Cody, Wyo., it was disclosed here today.

Dr. Loren Eiseley of the University of Pennsylvania said the Wyoming camp site probably dates back to between 5000 and 12,000 B. C.

He called the find one of the most important ever made in connection with the culture of the Yuma, the Nomadic group which disappeared centuries ago as a cultural unit. They were among the earliest known inhabitants of the New World.

Eiseley estimated the ancient camp site covered about 600 square feet of a terrace overhanging Sage Creek, five miles northeast of Cody.

The valuable deposit of tools, weapons and food remains was preserved through the centuries by desert sands.

The Yuma were foot hunters who roved the high plains of the West in search of bison. Evidences of their existence may have been found before, Dr. Eiseley said, but never so extensively or in a deposit that may enable scientists to fix more accurately the period in which they lived.

For example, he said, from the bison bones it may be possible to determine whether the Yuma lived before certain types of bison became extinct late in the ice age.

Explorers Fail In Ark Search; Try Again Today

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The American expedition seeking Noah's Ark has combed the western peaks of 17,160 Mt. Ararat without finding any trace of the fabled menagerie, but the search will be resumed Saturday, the newspaper Vatan reported today.

The newspaper said the five-man expedition headed by Aaron J. Smith of Greensboro, N. C., climbed to a point well above the 10,000-foot level where a shepherd had reported seeing the petrified "hull" of a ship. Smith is convinced that the Ark is still on Ararat, where the Bible says it landed.

U. S. Fleet in France After Maneuvers

Nice, France, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The Sixth U. S. Task Fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, arrived off the French Riviera today after five days of maneuvers in the Mediterranean.

The fleet, headed by the 40,000-ton aircraft carrier Coral Sea and the cruiser Fargo, was expected to leave September 12 for Gibraltar.

Tito Traces Stalin Row Back to '44

Paris, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia told a party of visiting Americans nine days ago his differences with Premier Josef Stalin date back at least five years, it was made known tonight.

Tito said Stalin regards him as "small fry" and wants to make him knuckle under, the Americans said.

Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, Harvard professor, described a five-hour talk he and five other Americans had with Tito at his summer home on the Adriatic island of Brioni on August 24.

"Differences of Principle"

Tito made it clear his bad relations with Stalin went back as far as the meeting they had in Moscow in 1944, long before the war ended and when Tito was Yugoslav Partisan leader, Mather said. He continued:

"One of our group asked Tito: 'At the time of your meeting with Stalin were your relations with him harmonious and happy?'

"Tito had been leaning back in his chair. He suddenly sat up stiffly, planted his elbows firmly on the table and answered curtly: 'No; they were not.'"

Mather said Tito told his group the real differences between Yugoslavia and Russia were differences of principle "between centralized power in a monolithic Communist world organization and decentralized power which recognizes the autonomy of various segments of the Communist world."

Doubts Military Attack

"We asked Tito point-blank whether he was not disturbed by the war of words launched against Yugoslavia by the Cominform, and whether he did not fear it might be followed by open war with Soviet Russia," Mather said. "Tito replied without a moment's hesitation:

"'No, I do not expect we shall be attacked militarily.'

"We then asked him whether he did not see a close parallel between the present Cominform offensive and the way Hitler led up to his aggression. He replied:

"'The parallel you have suggested is not accurate. There are significant differences. The differences are so great that I do not expect a military aggression, although I do think they will intensify their effort at economic strangulation.'"

Czech Passport Ruling Called New 'Purge'

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Communist government's new order canceling all Czechoslocak passports as of November 30 was described by Western diplomats here today as a kind of "passport purge."

A government announcement said all current passports, including diplomatic, will become invalid, and must be turned in for new ones.

An accompanying decree ruled that from now on all Czechs traveling in foreign lands for more than 10 days must submit their passports for registration at Czech legations in whatever country they are visiting. This would insure a close check on the movements of travelers.

(In Washington, Juraj Slavik, former Czech Ambassador to the United States, said the new Prague ruling will hasten decisions by Czechs abroad whether to break with the Communist regime. Slavik, who resigned after the Communists took over in Prague in the coup of 1948, termed the new order a "check on the reliability" of Czech citizens now outside the country.)

Delegates Assemble For Swiss Conclave

Caux-sur-Montreux, Switzerland, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Delegates from all over the world gathered here today for a special convention of the "Moral Rearmament" organization.

An American advance party, including Philip Courtney of the National Association of Manufacturers and other businessmen, arrived, and several Senators and Congressmen are expected next week.

Mrs. Peron Grateful Despite Funds Veto

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Maria Eva Duarte de Peron, the President's wife, appeared before the Peronist majority of the Chamber of Deputies to thank them for 12 million dollars she did not get.

The chamber appropriated the money recently for Mrs. Peron's favorite charities, which she carried out through the Maria Eva Duarte de Peron Foundation, but her husband vetoed the appropriation on the grounds of economy.

'Shanghaied' Sailor Faces Up to Two Years in Prison

situation was overruled by Comdr. Lloyd A. Straits, president of the court, after Lieut. Comdr. R. H. Kroetz, prosecutor, said Ryan had not been served with charges at the time he asked for counsel.

Ryan's confinement in the psychiatric ward at the hospital capped a harrowing ordeal of boling impressed into the Foreign Legion after he had missed his ship in San Remo, Italy, in July, 1947. He was tortured and sent to fight in French Indo-China, but refused to sign Legion enlistment papers, according to Ryan's testimony Thursday.

"Excessive Fantasy"

Lieut. Comdr. Samuel B. Thompson, a prosecution rebuttal witness, testified Ryan was suffering from "constituional psychopathic inferiority," a personality disorder. Its characteristics, he said, include "taking actions not well thought out" and using "excessive fantasy or imagination," including "fabrication," at times.

However, he said under cross examination, "we all use these mechanisms."

Moorman and his law partner, Joseph Mathias, told yesterday how Walter G. Leathe of Malden, Mass., had come into the court martial as a witness to tell of seeing Ryan in the Foreign Legion.

Leathe, who also had been shanghaied into the Foreign Legion, according to his testimony, had written a magazine article about his experiences. About two weeks ago, while in the brig, Ryan had chanced to read it, and when he saw a paragraph describing how Leathe had witnessed Ryan's beatings while refusing to sign Legion enlistment papers, he asked for his lawyers.

Leathe was contacted at his home, and, amazed that Ryan was charged with desertion from the Navy, he volunteered to testify.

Testimony Contradicted

Yesterday, a shipmate of Ryan's on the U. S. S. Dickson, Ship's Serviceman Third Class Larry D. Gordon, appeared for the defense. He testified that when the destroyer was at San Remo in July, 1947, the "scuttlebutt" was that the ship would go from there to France.

Ryan had testified he crossed the border to Nice, France, after he found he had missed the ship, thinking he could get aboard there.

The Dickson actually went to Rapallo, Italy, and Gordon's testimony that the crew did not know this destination until the ship left San Remo was denied by the ship's executive officer, Lieut. Mitchell P. Strohl, in testimony yesterday.

Steel Plant to Close, Laying Off About 1700

Cleveland, Sept. 2 (AP).—Republic Steel Corp. today announced it will shut down the iron and steel making facilities at its Massillon, Ohio, plant on Sunday for an indefinite period.

Republic said about 1700 would be laid off, because "the demand for alloy steel from the Canton-Massillon area has declined to a point that all orders can be filled by the Canton plant for the time being."

said he examined the child after the incident and that the fall had "nothing to do" with the lad's death.

Another physician, who preferred to remain anonymous, posed the possibility of "some kind of a virus or bacterial infection" but then commented that an infection of such virulence probably would have manifested itself earlier.

Members of the child's family declared Richard had never been seriously ill and that his diet was a balanced one of meat, cereals and vegetables. There had been no illness in the family nor had the child visited others, they said.

The Cahills have one other child, Joyce, 5 months old. Cahill operates a jewelry store at 4912 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Tito Ends Trade Pact With Soviet on Danube

Belgrade, Sept. 2 (AP).—Yugoslavia formally served notice tonight she is ending her commercial agreements with Russia for joint enterprises in Danube shipping and civil aviation.

The action came as the latest move in the Balkan war of nerves between Marshal Tito and the Russian-dominated Cominform countries.

It was foreshadowed on August 12 when Transport Minister Bozidar Maslaric announced the jointly financed Russian-Yugoslav Yuspad Corp., which had been set up to control and develop mutual shipping interests on the Danube, would be liquidated.

Soviet-British Trade Talks Reported Breaking Down

London, Sept. 2 (AP).—Diplomatic officials today reported British-Russian talks for a one-year trade pace involving nearly 100 million pounds (400 million dollars) worth of business are near a breakdow .

Under these separate agreements, this country would, for instance, get coarse grains or timber or canned fish in return for various goods the Russians want.

The officials said the talks seem about to break down because:

Britain is unable to meet Russia's demands for guaranteed delivery dates of the goods she wants to buy; Russia has been trying to get certain kinds of military goods the western powers have barred to Communist countries.

Comnform Radio Reporte Jamming Tito's Station

London, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The Cominform radio, operating from outside Yugoslavia, has been broadcasting anti-Tito propaganda and trying to jam Radio Belgrade for several weeks, well-informed sources said today.

Half Million E. J. Ewing Estate Contested By Suit of Cousin

A suit contesting the will of Elmon J. Ewing, former president of the Standard Engineering Co. in Washington, has been filed in Arlington Circuit Court by John F. Ewing, first cousin of the deceased.

The estate in question is estimated to be worth approximately half a million dollars, including real estate in Washington and Arlington, and Standard Engineering stock, according to Clarence A. Ahalt, of Leesburg, Va., one of the executors. Charles H. Wolohon, 500 Underwood st. nw., is co-executor.

Ewing, a retired Baltimore businessman, contends in his suit that his cousin died intestate and asks that "paper writings purporting to be his last will and testament" be set aside. The cousin died August 27, 1948.

In the suit, Ewing states that he believes the two legal heirs are himself and another cousin, David E. Hardester. Attorney for John Ewing is William Medley.

The suit names as defendants the following beneficiaries of the will: Frank H. Haines, 2129 I st. nw.; Dave H. Hardester, 1151 New Jersey ave. nw.; Jacob Glassmyer, 1307 Potomac ave. se.; Clarence A. Ahalt, Leesburg, Va.; Frank Bosma, 2129 I sts nw.; Henry Bosma, 6805 Pineway, College Heights, Md.; Mary L. Harris, 6937 Georgia ave. nw.; Emily M. Hilbert, 2414 Pennsylvania ave. nw.; Pauline Lewis, c/o District National Securities Corp., 218 Colorado Bldg., D. C.; Charles H. Wolohon, 500 Underwood st. nw.; David E. Hardester, 1151 New Jersey ave. nw.

David E. Hardester, and Dave H. Hardester are father and son, a member of the family said.

Truck Driver Fined In Locomotive Wreck

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP).—John Gajczak, truck driver, was fined $25 and ordered to pay the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad $100 for damages to a locomotive which destroyed the truck. He was charged with trespassing on railroad property.

The driver placed planks across the tracks near Lockport in attempting a short cut to make a delivery of coal.

Broken Perfume Bottle Scents Danes' Mail

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The delicately scented letters from France which reached several Copenhagen homes today aroused suspicion in some wifely hearts. The postmaster averted domestic strife by announcing that a bottle of perfume had broken in today's Paris mail sack.

Drinking Curfew Being Enforced On Londoners

London, Sept. 2 (NYHT).—Hundreds of Londoners were leisurely working their way through their last half-bottle in West End night clubs early today when police appeared with slips of paper which said "No drinking after 2:30 a. m."

This meant the new licensing act of 1949 henceforth would be enforced, and that London nightlife will cease at 2:30 a. m. on weekdays and 12:30 a. m. on Sundays. Normally the clubs close between 4 a. m. and 5 a. m.

The order went into effect three weeks ago, but night club operators did not expect it to be applied for another month because of the depressing effect on the tourist trade.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE YANKEES ARE being properly esteemed for their retention of the league lead with a lineup shot through by injuries, but a certain respect must be reserved, too, for the gutty demonstrations of the Cleveland Indians.

The tendency was to write the Indians out of the pennant fight after the first month of the season when it was clear that too many of the 1948 champions were bogging down. But here they are this week only 4½ games to the rear of the Yanks, and still a pennant factor.

POVICH

There can be no gainsaying the Indians' gameness. As irrefutable testimony is perhaps the most amazing performance of recent big league history. The Indians the other day recorded their seventeenth straight extra-inning victory. They aren't the best team in the league at this point, but they must be the greatest clutch club.

You can't dismiss a club that wins so many of 'em that way. The Indians are threatening to rise above their other weaknesses. Lou Boudreau, Ken Keltner and Joe Gordon, the stalwarts of last year, are having off-seasons. Gene Bearden, the rookie sensation of 1948, has been a 1949 flop. Bob Feller isn't having one of his good years. But the Indians aren't out of it yet.

BOTH THE YANKEES and the Indians have high claims on the fans' sentiments, in contrast to the second-place Red Sox. The Boston club, with hitting power that shames its rivals, and boasting in Mel Parnell the only 20-game winner among the league's pitchers, has been a bungling team most of the season.

If the Red Sox don't win the pennant, their failure can be easily traced to those five straight defeats they took from the Yankees in a July series. That, to date, was the most crucial series for both clubs and the Yankees, blessed by the return of Joe DiMaggio's bat, mopped up. In fact, it has been the Yankees' ability to win 10 of the 15 games with Boston this season that has kept the Yanks on top and the Red Sox in second place.

A couple of times after approaching within a game and a half of the Yankees' lead, the Red Sox bogged down, which is not the stamp of an opportunist club. In Detroit the other day, when the Red Sox started Mel Parnell for what shaped up as a "must" victory, Boston couldn't score a run for him. He was outpitched by Young Art Houtteman, who has rebounded from last spring's fractured skull to win the imposing total of 13 games for the Tigers.

THE YANKEES ARE the miracle club of the AL with their ability to stay out on top despite the long absence of Joe DiMaggio and Yogi Berra, and now the convalescence of Tommy Henrich. When DiMaggio isn't in the lineup, the Yankees can't show a .300 hitter among their regulars, but they're still the toughest club in the league to beat.

Vic Raschi, their Royal Nonesuch winner of earlier in the season, has been a liability to the Yanks for the past six weeks, but young Tommy Byrne has popped up as a sensational winner. As long as Manager Casey Stengel can keep Relief Ace Joe Page semi-healthy, the Yanks will continue tough. On paper the Yanks inspire no awe. On the ball field, they're rough.

The Yankees' position, three games in front of the Red Sox and 4½ in front of Cleveland, is better than it looks at first glance. Their big bulge is in the lost column where they show five fewer defeats than Boston, six fewer than Cleveland. For the latter two clubs, those are irretrievable losses. The Yanks still have those games to play and, at worst, could win a couple.

AND THE SCHEDULE favors the Yanks, much as it does the Cardinals in the National League, who are having their troubles with the Dodgers. Those Cards, with 27 games remaining, face up the seventh-place Reds and eighth-place Cubs in 13 of those contests, while the Dodgers are tangling with first1division clubs in 16 of their remaining 27 games.

The Yankees play 23 of their remaining 29 games at home in the friendly confines of Yankee Stadium where they have always been at their best. The Red Sox, too, finish on their home grounds where Ted Williams is not the same tremendous home-run threat. As it happens, the Yanks and Red Sox meet head-to-head seven times more.

The pennant picture will be drawn considerably finer next week after the Yanks and Red Sox complete a three-game series at Yankee Stadium. That series could be the death blow for the Red Sox or pump new life into their hopes. Meanwhile, the Indians are lurking in wait for the chance to get both of 'em into extra-inning contests, or perhaps a pennant play-off.

Redskin Rob Goode

Bears' 219-Pound Mistake Will Be Thrown at 'Em Sunday

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 2.—The Chicago Bears, who seldom make mistakes, will have one of their few miscues thrown in their face at Crump Stadium on Sunday.

That's when they meet up with the Washington Redskins in Memphis' first National Football League exhibition. A member of the Washington contingent will be Rob Goode, a terrific prospect for the Redskins but a horrible mistake as far as the Bears are concerned.

It was during the 1947 collegiate football season that Goode, a 219-pound halfback who stands 6-feet-4, was "discovered." But not by his present owners, the Redskins.

Frank Korch, publicity man of the Bears, was making a trip through Texas when he happened to spend an idle afternoon watching the Texas A. & M. team in action. Most of the action was supplied by Goode. He played on both offense and defense, contributing to an average somebody later figured was 58 minutes a game.

Korch couldn't wait to report his find to Owner-Coach George Halas of the Bears. And Halas could barely wait to get Goode's name on the Bear draft list at the end of the '47 season. Here was all the replacement needed for George McAfee, the great Duke halfback who wanted to retire after five years of service.

The catch was that Goode wasn't eligible for the draft. Given another year of eligibility by the Aggies, his name was removed from NFL lists by Commissioner Bert Bell.

Meanwhile Redskin scouts had taken a hint and looked at Goode. They came to the draft meeting a year later with a choice just ahead of the Bears and used it to Halas' chagrin.

Goode has the physical equipment to be the greatest halfback of all time, in the opinion of the Redskin coaching staff. Despite his size, he is one of the fastest men on the squad. Even in street clothes he appears to be wearing shoulder pads, yet he hits a hole in the opposition's line with lightning speed.

Bosox Get Five in 1st, Win From Macks, 8-4

Boston, Sept. 2 (AP). — With Al Zarilla lashing an inside-the-park homer with two on, the Boston Red Sox trounced the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-4, tonight before a packed 33,807 crowd.

The win enabled the Sox to cut the idling New York Yankees' lead to 2½ games.

The Sockers wrapped up the game in the opening inning against Phil Marchildon by belting him for five runs, three of which Bobby Doerr accounted for by lashing his 15th homer with Johnny Pesky and Junior Stephens aboard.

Zarilla's homer was a solid belt into right field that bounced along the boards as the aged Wally Moses chased it with one out in the fourth inning.

Ted Williams had opened that side of the frame by drawing a base on balls. After Stephens flied to center, Doerr singled to left. Both runners scored before Moses could grasp Zarilla's homer.

Jack Kramer opened for the Red Sox but was yanked for Joe Dobson, who was credited with the win. In the third, Kramer walked two and then was belted for two-baggers by Sam Chapman and Pete Suder for three runs.

Meets Coe Today

Man Named King Upsets Turnesa, 2-1

By Oscar Fraley

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 2 (U.P.)—Rufus King, a tough Texan with no regard for reputations, and Charley Coe, par buster from Oklahoma, scored smashing victories today to provide an all-Southwest final for the United States Amateur Golf Championship.

King, Wichita Falls (Tex.) rancher, scored the upset triumph of the tournament in the chill sunshine at Oak Hill Country Club when he knocked off Defending Champion Willie Turnesa, the tournament-hardened veteran from Elmsword, N. Y., 2 and 1.

And Coe, a slugging stringbean from Oklahoma City, rode roughshod over Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., as he blasted the legislator, 8 and 7, for the right to meet King in tomorrow's 36-hole finals.

But while Coe's victory was accomplished with impressive ease, the honors of the day went to King—the unknown nobody had given a chance against the wily Willie.

Turnesa Blows Up

For Turnesa was the lad they thought would come grinding through to a chips-down triumph when the heat was on in the stretch. But it was the 33-year-old S. M. U. graduate, impassive as Turnesa drew even in the late holes, who calmly held together while "Willie the Wedge" blew sky high.

It was tight, tense golf as Turnesa, down to King all day as he sought his third National crown, drew even on the twenty-eighth hole. They thought then that Big Rufe was through.

But they didn't know the guy from Texas. He roared right back with a series of pressure pars which put him two up on the thirty-second as Turnesa—and not the underdog King—helped himself to a pair of bogeys. So they went to the thirty-fourth—and once more it looked like Big Rufe might blow up as he blasted a straying drive which cost him the hole with a bogey.

King was one up with two to go then, and that's when the swarthy little Turnesa failed the test.

Both caught traps with their second shots—and that's the shot on which "Willie the Wedge" was supposed to have a patent. Only this time Big Rufe had it. He knocked his next shot up on the carpet for a birdie four—while Turnesa missed his third, sent the fourth skittering over the green, came back in five and took a horrible two over par seven which closed out the match.

An Old Trapshooter

King in 1937 won the grand American trapshoot but has yet to make a name for himself in golf.

King works for his father on their 2300-acre ranch.

Fourteen years ago he participated in the National Amateur for the first time and threw everyone, including himself, into consternation by tossing five consecutive birdies at Lawson Little, then the defending champion, in the first round of the 1935 feet.

The 6-foot 2-inch Coe, 25-year-old Walker Cup ace, played it down the middle all the way with crisp iron shots that usually were right on the flag. Campbell, who in seven previous years never had won a match but this year took five in a row, didn't show the golf he played previously. He was suffering from hay fever, and a warning from the U. S. G. A. to speed up the play didn't help any.

Still, he would have had a hard time matching Coe's game. The Oklahoma City insurance man toured the first 18 holes in even par 34, 37—71 against Campbell's 38, 38—76. And then thin Charley had an afternoon 36 out as the irritated Campbell blew himself to a 41.

King, in scoring his upset triumph over Turnesa, put Wee Willie on the floor right at the start and—except for the brief period on the final nine holes when Turnesa drew even—never let him up.

The burly Texan had Turnesa pressing from the start by outdriving the champ. And he finished the first nine holes one up although both of them shot par 35's.

Seals Club Wins D. C. Swim Title

The Seals Club, an organization of swimmers from Banneker and Dunbar pools, scored 111 points to win the District swimming championship for the third time in a row. Second place went to the Francis Pool with 53 points and Druid Hill of Baltimore registered 41 points to take third.

Yanks Open Series With Nats Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Looking for a softer touch after being pinned down twice by the seventh-place Browns, the league-leading Yankees open a two-game series with the eighth-place Nats today at Griffith Stadium.

Although his pace-setters have won 10 out of 14 skirmishes from the Nats this season, Yankee Manager Casey Stengel isn't taking anything for granted against Washington's cellar-dwellers.

He's saddling Allie Reynolds, one of his front-line pitchers, for today's 2:30 tiff and coming back with Lefthander Ed Lopat in Sunday's getaway game.

Reynolds, who usually requires Joe Page to finish what he starts, will be shooting for his fourteenth success against four losses. He'll be opposed by either Ray Scarborough (10-10) or Mickey Harris (3-11).

It won't be the same Yankee team which took three out of three from the Nats hte last time at Griffith Stadium. Missing from the Bombers' lineup with various wounds are Tommy Henrich, Larry Berra and Johnny Mize.

While the Yankees are battling the embattled Nats, the second-place Red Sox will be scuffling with the Philadelphia Athletics. The script changes Labor Day, sending the Nats to Boston for a twin bill while the Yankees meet up with the Mackmen twice.

As a result, the Nats once again find themselves in the thick of the pennant scrap, although their own chances are so dead that rigor mortis has set in.

What the Nats do or fail to do in the next three days could determine where the World Series will be played this fall. Neither contender should worry too much, however. New York has won 10 of 14 from Washington while Boston has taken 13 out of 18.

Grays, Giants Clash Monday

Washington's Homestead Grays, first half winners, will meet the Richmond Giants in the first game of a seven-game series for the championship of the Negro American Association at Griffith Stadium, Monday afternoon.

The Gaints clinched the second half title at Richmond yesterday when they edged the Norfolk Royals, 3-2, for their nineteenth victory in a row. The Virginians have a 29-4 record with only two games to play.

Williamson to Keep You Posted on Grid Ratings

The Washington Post will publish the Paul B. Williamson weekly ratings of local and national teams during the 1949 intercollegiate football season.

Williamson's predictions on forthcoming games also will be published.

Williamson's calculations will be carried twice weekly. Tuesday and Thursday, beginning September 6.

Rated as America's foremost prophet, Williamson has scientifically calculated the related standing of teams and forecast games for more than 30 years, with an outstanding average of 85 per cent correct on over 40,000 games.

In making selections, Williamson mathematically considers such factors as scoring records, manpower, coaching, team condition, morale, style and travel schedule.

A statistical summary of college and service football, the Williamson system starts with September games and continues through the Rose Bowl and other New Year's Day games. He has spent more than 10 months plotting the collective values of over 900 teams for the 1949 season.

Through cross-filing and correlating Williamson presents the following (listed alphabetically) as his "First 10" for 1949: Dartmouth, Michigan State, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma U., Ole Miss, Southern Calif., Southern Methodist, Tulane, Villanova.

In the difficult 1948 season, Williamson predicted 2,959 wins and 58 ties out of 3550 games for an outstanding average of 84.7 per cent right.

Pretends Unconcern

Bosses Miss Onslow's Dinner, Leave Him Food for Thought

Chicago, Sept. 2 (AP).—Jack Onslow still doesn't know whether he again will manage the Chicago White Sox in 1950 after failure of a "dinner date" approach to the question. But he won't quit with a year of his contract left.

In the past 24 hours, here's what happened in the White Sox hierarchy:

1. Onslow invited Club President Grace B. Comiskey, Treasurer Dorothy Comiskey Rigney, Assistant Secretary Gracie Lou Comiskey and Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan, club legal adviser, to a dinner-meeting to discuss his 1950 status. (He did not invite Charles Comiskey, club vice president, nor General-Manager Frank Lane with whom he has feuded publicly.

2. Due to Mrs. Comiskey's announced illness, the meeting never developed.

3. Comiskey, 23-year-old major domo of Sox affairs, held a press conference; said Lane had his blanket indorsement as general manager (Lane has four years of a five-year contract to serve); and asserted "I still have an open mind regarding our manager for next season."

4. Onslow, reprimanded by Comiskey for "talking to the wrong people—I'm running this team," countered with "I've got a contract that runs to January 1, 1951, and I'm not going to quit. If they want to pay me for going fishing in New Hampshire next year, it'll be all right with me."

Onslow, 59-year-old "freshman" major league pilot, explained his dinner invitation was prompted "to get this thing straightened out. If I'm not going to run the club next year, I want to know about it now.

"I just want to find out what's going on. They never tell me anything and I'm only the manager of the club. I read in the paper last night where they had recalled 10 players from the minors for next spring. Nobody told me about it.

Young Comiskey had as much to say about Lane as Onslow in his press conference.

Frank Lane is my general manager and I'm running the team for my mother and two sisters," said Charley. "He doesn't make a move without my knowledge and I'm happy to say we work very well together." (Onslow recently criticized player deals consummated by Lane which he said were unsatisfactory.)

"I see no reason for Jack to worry about the next season," continued Comiskey, "since he still has a two-year contract running through 1950. Then the young executive conceded he had an "open mind" on next season's manager.

Barrier Leads Pistol Shoot

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 2 (AP). A Marine captain, Thurman Barrier of Washington, D. C., set the pace in the opening round of the National Pistol Championships today, scoring 866 out of a possible 900 points.

Barrier finished a point ahead of Tech. Sergt. Heulet Benner of Fort Knox, Ky., who had 865. Third with 856 was Phillip Roettinger of Newington, Conn., tied for fourth at 855 each were Master Sergt. T. R. Mitchell, Quantico, Va., and Jesse Woody of Stanton, Tex.

Other leaders today included: Sergt. Walter E. Fletcher, Washington, D. C., 853; Charles R. Logie, Grand Rapids, Mich., 852; John Porter, Detroit, 851, and O. Pinion, Norfolk, Va., 850.

Today's competition was limited to .22-caliber pistol. Barrier and Benner staged a nip-and-tuck battle. The Marne captan led after the slow-fire match, 186 to 183. In rapd fire, Benner won, 198 to 194, for an over-all lead of 578 to 577. In the closng match, Barrier finished ahead, 289 to 287, for his day's advantage of one point.

44,248 See Dodgers Cut Cards' Lead to 1½ Games

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Don Newcombe registered his third straight shutout tonight, pitching the Brooklyn Dodgers to an 8-0 victory over the New York Giants.

The triumph reduced the St. Louis Cardinals' first place lead over them to a game and a half.

A crowd of 44,248 watched the big Brooklyn righthander handcuff the Giants with five singles as he extended his consecutive scoreless string to 30 innings.

He previously had blanked the Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates and held the Boston Braves runless in the last three innings. Don fanned seven to tie Boston's Warren Spahn at 119 strikeouts.

Lefty Dave Koslo started for the Giants, but failed to get by the fourth inning. He gave up six runs. Every man in the Dodger lineup hit safely except Gil Hodges. Peewee Reese, Jackie Robinson and Newcombe had two safeties apiece.

After picking up three unearned runs in the first inning on two singles and a pair of Giant errors, the Brooks got three legitimate runs in the fourth on five solid swats. Two-baggers by Luis Olmo and Newcombe were the most destructive blows.

They picked up single tallies against Andy Hansen and Adrian Zabala in the sixth and ninth innings. It was Newcombe's fourteenth triumph against six losses.

Phillies Win, Regain Fourth

Philadelphia, Sept. 2 (AP).—A home run by Bill Nicholson and a two-run single by Willie Jones were the payoff blows tonight as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Boston Braves, 6-3, and regained fourth place in the National League pennant race.

Nicholson's blow, his tenth homer of the year, tied the score in the seventh after the Braves had counted once in the fifth and twice in the sixth on circuit blows by Jeff Heath and Connie Ryan.

In the eighth the Phils put the seal on the game when they scored three times. A walk to Dick Sisler, a double by Ennis, a fielder's choice by Andy Seminick, an intentional walk to Nicholson and singles by Jones and Goliat did the damage. Jones' blow brought home the first two runs.

Zimmerman Hurls Arlington P. O. to Softball Crown

Tossing his second no-hitter in a row, his third in the playoffs, Zeke Zimmerman pitched Arlington Post Office to a 3-0 victory over Navy Yard Shop 13 for the D. C. Recreation softball championship yesterday at West Potomac Park.

Zimmerman, who allowed only two hits in his last 34 innings, was the big reason the Arlington team won the crown over 277 teams in 40 leagues.

But in yesterday's title game, he received a lift from Roger Groettum who batted in all three runs with a triple and single.

Forgotten Frankie Parker Whips Sturgess at Forest Hills

3d Win in Row

Braganca Sets Record At Timonium

Special to The Washington Post

Timonium, Md., Sept. 2.—Braganca won his third straight race on the Maryland half-mile circuit here today, setting a track record for the mile and an eighth into the bargain.

The consistent 4-year-old gelding went the distance in 1:57 2/5, two seconds faster than the mark set by Beau Wynn in September, 1947.

Despite his record, Braganca was overlooked by the bettors and returned $17 for $2 with the favored Grandma C. second by a length.

Braganca, owned and trained by Henry Romaine, former rider, chased Grandma C. until the final sixteenth. Then Jockey Jim McDermott asked for and received the winning bid in the $1200 featured Merryland Purse.

There was another upset in the sixth, secondary attraction, when Vitacle beat Gay Beauty by a neck at a $23 price. Welaunie, 8 to 5 choice, wound up third.

Form prevailed in the early races and the daily double paid a modest $17.40. Bugler sounded off in the opener and survived by the barest of noses to beat out Cisred and pay $5.60. Caesar B, even money choice, also won by a nose over Mitla to account for the second half.

Jockey Jimmy Baird was the winning rider aboard Caesar B, his sixth triumph in three days.

Net Veteran Returns to Main Court

By Gayle Talbot

Forest Hills, Sept. 2 (AP).—They finally let Frankie Parker, the old boy wonder, play in the big stadium today, and he reacted to the famed surroundings by knocking the top seeded foreigner, Eric Sturgess of South Africa, right out of the National tennis championships.

For four days the two-time former champion, for some opaque reason, had been forced to perform on remote outside courts. When he got in there before the crowd, which always—for some 15 years—has thought he was great, Frankie put on a brilliant performance and fairly throttled the player who reached the finals a year ago against Pancho Gonzales. The scores were 6-3, 6-8, 6-1, 6-4.

In one of tomorrow's four quarter-final matches, Frankie, forgotten man of the United States Davis Cup team, will face Gardnar Mulloy, the 35-year-old Miami star who was seeded a notch above him in the championships.

Two Foreigners Left

Sturgess' defeat left only two foreigners among the eight survivors, Frank Sedgman, the youthful Australian champion, and Jaroslav Drobny, self-exiled Czech star. Both are in the lower bracket with Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., Wimbledon champion and No. 1 seeded player.

Sedgman, who will renew his Davis Cup warfare with Schroeder tomorrow, played far too much tennis for Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N. J., who in an earlier round upset seeded Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills. His service was too severe and his volleying too deadly for the stocky American, and the scores were 6—3, 6—2, 10—8.

Drobny, who was beaten by Schroeder in the Wimbledon final this summer, put out scrappy little Earl Cochell of San Francisco, 6—3, 6—2, 8—6. He broke Earl's service once in each set; Earl could never solve Drobny's left-handed fire balls. The Czech scored 22 service aces.

Talbert Advances

Drobny's quarter-final opponent will be Billy Talbert of New York, the third seeded American. Billy enjoyed an easy passage today at the expense of Robert Abdesselam of France, whom he far outclassed, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2.

Schroeder driving smoothly toward an almost certain showdown with Gonzales in Monday's final, was not extended in eliminating Sam Match of Los Angeles.

Match, seeded No. 10, and a rattling good tennis player in his own right, was completely at sea against Schroeder's fierce service and sharp all-court play and went down tamely, 6—3, 6—2, 6—2.

Gonzales, the defending champion, won his way into the quarter-final round yesterday in the opposite bracket from Schroeder and tomorrow will face Art Larsen.

Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., qualified for a quarter-final meeting with Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., the defending champion, by eliminating Mrs. Jean Walkersmith, of the British Wightman Cupper, 7—5, 6—4.

Jay Wolf Finally Wins D. C. Junior Open

Jay Wolf, 20-year-old Boston U. student making his last stand in the D. C. Junior Open, won the title yesterday at Georgetown Prep.

Jay, youthful pride of Indian Spring, tried unsuccessfully for the title for five years. He won't be eligible next year.

Jay and Bobby traded the first two holes before the eventual winner stepped out to take a six-up lead at the turn. Bobby, winner in two marathon matches Thursday, rallied to win the tenth, eleventh and twelfth holes.

But Jay held him even on the thirteenth, took the fourteenth with a birdie 4 and won the match when they both had birdies on the par 5 fifteenth.

The new champ went into the final round by defeating Kay Fletcher, 14-year-old sensation, 4 and 3. Bobby Wolfe won his semi-final test from Willie Beach, 2-up.

Tech Must Rebuild Team; Coolidge Club Is Promising

Only 4 Lettermen Return to Trainers

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Traditionally a powerhouse in the Interhigh football league, McKinley Tech is rebuilding this year.

Graduation and an unfortunate jeep accident last month robbed Tech of all its lettermen except four ends.

They are Elwood Cook, Don Wolfe, Richie Gaskell and Ray Fox. Fox is the key man. He has also played a little in the backfield, and will be moved to the fullback spot.

He'll call the signals, a job which was reserved for young Perry Dellastatious until he was killed in a jeep crash.

With the season's opening still three weeks away, the Trainers can already boast of one distinction. They have the heaviest tackle in the league. He is 235-pounder Maurice Collins, who saw a little reserve duty last season.

In winning five out of seven league games last year, Solomon's team experimented with such reserve passers as Benny Colandreo and Stonewall Jackson, both of whom are looking well in practice.

Handling the quarterback spot, which is blocking back on Solomon's single wing, is Johnny Hobbs, who looks just as rugged as his brother Francis, a tackle for Tech last season. Hobbs will play freshman ball at Virginia Tech this fall.

Other Techites who will see a lot of action are:

Colts Must Depend On Light, Fast Unit

Life gets rather monotonous for Coolidge High Coach Gil Conn.

During the summer, when he has a spare moment, he works on a new home he is building in Maryland. Then, when fall comes around, he builds some more, trying to construct a winning football team at Coolidge.

"It's building, building, building, all the time," says Conn. "It's been going on like this for three years, and I don't seem to be getting anywhere."

Three years ago, Coolidge won its last Interhigh grid flag. But things don't look quite as bad as Conn paints them.

To be sure, it's his lightest team since Coolidge started football nine years ago, but it's the most promising since the championship club.

At times, the Colts will have to depend on such lightweights as 135-pound Walter Krukowski to carry the ball, but they also have such very promising reserves of last year as Arnie Tranen, Kirby Gallagher and Dan Richardson.

Tranen came to Coolidge last year, touted as another edition of Addie Bassin, Coolidge's All-High back of seven years ago. Arnie is Addie's cousin, and throws one of the longest passes in the league.

He'll have capable pass receivers in End Billy Horan and Halfback Oscar Caroglinian, a rookie.

Adding a championship flavor to the Colts is Lou Kressin, who saw a lot of action at tackle for title winning Central last year. He scales 185 pounds, and is the heaviest man on the team.

Kressin's mate at tackle will be Morton Rudo, a very capable defensive player, who pulls out of the line to handle Colidge's kicking chores. He's one of the best young booters in town.

Using the "A", formation, Coolidge opens its slate September 23 against Wilson. Likely to see most action are:

Terps Will Scrimmage

The days of calisthenics and limbering up exercises are over for the University of Maryland's football team. Today at 3 o'clock Coach Jim Tatum will send his 62-man squad through the first scrimmage of the year.

"It'll only be a light drill," he said, "but we'll knock heads. The boys look ready."

The players got in an afternoon of real body contact work yesterday, just one day after the opening of the fall training period.

The afternoon workout, which saw the squad divided into offensive and defensive teams, was in contrast to a morning session in which the gridders, clad only in shorts, ran through plays.

Halfback Joe Kuchta got off several long runs.

One on the Aisle—

Dialogue Shines In Nutty Comedy

By Richard L. Coe

THE CAPITOL'S "Once More, My Darling" is a light screwball comedy, neatly played by Robert Montgomery, Ann Blyth and Jane Cowl.

The dialogue is crisply funny and the plot is treated with that deft disdain and politesse that no one handles more effectively than Montgomery. His playmates are particularly welcome, for Miss Blyth is mighty amusing as a teen-ager in love with an older man, and Miss Cowl is something new in grande dames.

Robert Carson, a popular author of fluffy stories in the slick magazines, did the screen play from his "Come Be My Love," and the man has a good way with dialogue. The story, true, is a bit slight for full-length treatment, but let us not quarrel with a better-than-average comedy.

Montgomery plays a reluctant lawyer whose partner is his mother, Miss Cowl. She looks with disgust on his lazy ambitions to be a movie actor and longs for him to marry and settle down.

This becomes a likelihood when the Army calls him back into active service. Somebody's been jewel-robbing, sending the ice to a rich deb but lurking in the background himself. The Army has decided that former Captain Bob is the man to flush this man from the bush by fascinating the girl.

"ONE MORE, MY DARLING." Universal International release produced by Joan Harrison. Screen play by Robert Carson from his story, "Come Be My Love." Additional dialogue by Oscar Saul. Photographed by Frank Planer. Music by Elizabeth Firestone. Directed by Robert Montgomery. At the Capitol.

Good Old Army

You know the sort of thing. It gives room for Montgomery to be charming, to make fun of being charming and for a few neat lines about the brilliance of Army assignments.

The characters are what count and they're all individuals. Ann Blyth is fine as the deb named "Killer," whose father admires Churchill, so dresses and paints accordingly. Veteran Taylor Holmes plays this part amusingly. Miss Cowl, keeping her familiar stage handkerchief in her pocket, is amusing as the lawyer-mother; it's not a massive part, but it's a good one and should start Jane off on many mature screen ladies.

Montgomery directs this comedy as well as starring in it. He has recognized the capabilities of all his associates as well as his own and, thanks to the playing and Carson's light banter, "Once More, My Darling" is pleasant fun.

Vic Damone on Stage

Vic Damone, dear boy of the younger set, headlines the stage revue with his vastly popular ballards. Yes, mes enfants, Vic sings "Again" and "You're Breaking My Heart."

Wally and Verdyn Stapleton offer musical comedy dances, Eddy Manson makes melody with his harmonica and with Marjory Welles at the piano, and the Marshall Brothers unload their comedy tricks.

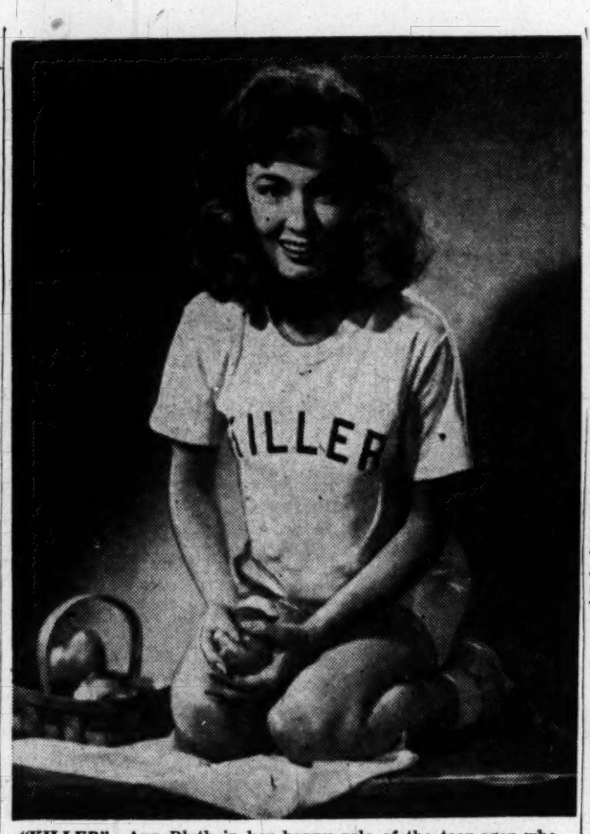
MARLENE DIETRICH'S twin revivifications (wow!) opened yesterday at the Dupont . . . With Olive Brook, she stars in "Shanghai Express," and with Gary Cooper in "Desire."

TOMORROW NIGHT the two young players who've scored so nicely with Olney audiences take their leave for the summer . . . June Dayton has had six roles as the Olney's ingenue, Husband Dean Harens has done 10 . . . The new season for both is still at the iffy stage, including those recurrent rumors of "Charm." . . . More pressing is Mrs. Harens' question: "Do you know of a good midtown apartment in New York that's empty?" . . . When the curtain falls on Susan Peters' "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" tomorrow night, there'll be some extra applause for Dean and June.

SUNDAY night also brings down the curtain of the third season of "The Common Glory" at Williamsburg . . . So far there was only one completely rained out performance, though two were suspended till Pluvius was through . . . Author Paul Green reports that this was the most successful of the three seasons, both from the point of view of his revised script and from that of crowds, which topped last year's 74,000 paid admissions . . . Yes, plans already are under way for 1950.

KEITH'S pulls a fast one, by bringing in a Donald O'Connor musical tomorrow, "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," with Charles Coburn and Gloria DeHaven costarred . . . Which means that tonight's the finale for the ape epic, "Mighty Joe Young."

MERIDIAN HILL'S open air stage urges stay-at-homes to make the most of the Labor Day weekend . . . "We've got two plays," cry they, and they do, too . . . Nancy Coleman and John Beal close "The Voice of the Turtle" Sunday night and on Monday Libby Holman, Donald Burr and Peter Fernandez take over in "O Mistress Mine."



"KILLER"—Ann Blyth in her happy role of the teen-ager who falls for Robert Montgomery in the Capitol's screen comedy, "Once More, My Darling"

Eviction Ordered On Four Homes In Alexandria

Alexandria Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan yesterday ordered tenants evicted from four condemned homes that the city has tried for most of the summer to have repaired or torn down.

Judge Duncan authorized immediate eviction of tenants at 713, 715 and 717 Wilkes st. and at 430 S. Columbus st. for non-payment of rent.

Owner Robert Sisson, 31, of Morrisville, Va., said he had given notice to tenants in six other substandard houses who had paid their rent that they must move out within 30 days. They rent homes at 711 and 719 Wilkes st. and at 426, 428, 432 and 434 S. Columbus st.

Sisson was convicted August 5, and is awaiting sentence, for failing to install sanitary facilities and make needed repairs at the sagging frame row houses. Judge Duncan took under advisement Sisson's request that his sentencing be deferred until the 30-day period is up.

The move against the houses is part of a city-wide slum-clearance effort led by City Councilman Marshall J. Beverley. The city has announced it will seek 400 low cost housing units under the new Federal housing bill.

Paris Raid Nets 2 Suspects in Gem Robbery

Paris, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Ten long-sought gangsters, including two suspects in a $300,000 jewel robbery, were seized by Paris police in a raid today.

Among them was Gene Girier, 31, known to Paris gangland as "Cocaine Rene" and suspected by police of being the lieutenant of Emile Buisson, France's present Public Enemy No. 1.

Girier was wanted in connection with the 100,000,000 franc ($300,000) robbery August 2 of the Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry store in Deauville, and the July 22 holdup of a Paris mail truck, which was robbed of more than one million francs ($3000).

He and the other suspects also will be questioned about various August gang robberies that netted the thieves a total of some $320,000.

Police said there was no indication that the gangsters were involved in the Riviera robbery of 213,000,000 francs ($680,000) worth of jewels from the Aga Khan.

$16,428,814 In Bay Bridge Jobs Awarded

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (AP).—The State Roads Commission today awarded $16,428,814 worth of contracts for building the substructure of Maryland's bridge across Chesapeake Bay.

The action was taken despite a suit filed in Circuit Court yesterday seeking to block the contracts.

Chairman Robert M. Reindollar of the Roads Commission announced it voted yesterday to sell additional bonds to take up the cost of the bridge in excess of the $37,500,000 authorized by the Maryland General Assembly in 1947.

Reindollar said the bridge now promises to cost $37,650,000, without any allowances for engineering fees, preliminary work, administrative and legal costs, rights of way, or special problems which may come up.

Merritt, Chapman and Scott of New York got the three of them—$591,401 for building piers one through 10, $3,060,16 for piers 32 through 40, and $915,475 for piers 41 through 57.

Frederick Snare, Inc., of New York will build the deepwater underpinnings for the longer and higher spans near the center. Its two contracts are $2,493,744 for piers 11 through 22, and $4,229,-51 for piers 23 and 28. These two will anchor the suspension spans.

Booth and Flinn will build the west abutments for $495,566, Baltimore contractors the east ones for $544,010.

The other contract went to J. Rich Steers, Inc., $3,100,291 for piers 24 through 27.

Park Drunks On Increase, Police Report

The business of picking up drunks is unfortunately picking up, according to Capt. Mark H. Raspberry of the Park Police.

Capt. Raspberry's men arrested 259 more drunken loiterers in Washington parks during the first 8 months of this year than in the same period of last year, the official stated yesterday in a report to the National Capital Parks Office.

As result arrests for the eight-month period totaled 926 on charges of drunkenness as compared to 667 in the same period last year. The number this year ranged from 20 in January to 267 in July and 202 in August.

Court rulings have proved a stumbling block in apprehending vagrants, Captain Raspberry said.

"Many more cases of vagrancy would appear on the records were it not for the ruling of the courts that an officer must observe such an individual for a period of three days before he is permitted to arrest the individual," he said.

The official also pointed out as a reason for the large number of drunkenness arrests that the "parks are a rendezvous for chronic offenders."

Union in Store To Take Ads To Spur Sales

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—A department store union plans a drive to bring in new business and help the boss make mony.

The AFL Retail Clerks local whose members work at the John Wanamaker department store will start their campaign next week by spending $5000 for newspaper advertisements.

Paul P. Milling, the local's president, said the 1900 union employes recognize it is in their interest for the store to prosper.

Phone Removal Appeal Denied

A request for reconsideration of a District Public Utilities Commission decision on removal of telephones allegedly used for gambling activities was denied yesterday by the Commission.

The request was filed last week by John L. Ingoldsby, jr., attorney for Harry and Bertha B. Katz, on the grounds that the review promised by the Commission was inadequate.

Action on Pay Increases For Employes on 'Hill' Postponed Indefinitely

The one pay raise bill that has run smack into deep trouble would raise the salaries of the several thousand legislative employes on Capitol Hill.

In fact, a subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee has postponed action on it indefinitely. That is polite language for saying the bill won't get its approval. It is also reported that Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas isn't happy over having his name on the measure.

The bill would raise administrative assistants and the No. 1 committee clerks to a maximum of $12,000 a year. This provision produced opposition from a score of Senators who said these employes were well paid now. House leaders also are cool to any bill to raise salaries of legislative workers.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), however, doesn't intend to let the matter die. He has an amendment that he plans to introduce as a rider to the classified pay bill. It would give legislative employes a flat 5 per cent increase across the board. It also would wipe out the dual salary rates for legislative people.

VFW: The Veterans of Foreign Wars, at its recent Miami convention, reaffirmed its support of the bill by Senator Cain (R., Wash.) to amend the veterans' preference act.

The big veterans' group did not go on record as opposed to any change in the preference law as was reported here Wednesday. Several of the delegates, it seems, were under that impression.

The VFW will continue to support the Cain bill to require veterans to get a passing mark of at least 70 before preference points are added, and to limit 10-point preference to those veterans who have a compensable disability of 10 or more per cent. The VFW is opposed to the Langer-Klein bill to cut off preference for veterans in reductions of force when they are competing with long-time career employes.

REA: Administrator Claude R. Wickard yesterday gave his Rural Electrification Administration employes a firm pat on the back when he told them in part:

"It irks me no end when I hear or read disparaging remarks about Federal employes being a useless burden on the taxpayers and not worth the salaries they get. I wish some of these glib detractors could get the feel of the high morale, the earnest devotion to duty, and the magnificent efforts to cope with an ever-growing work load without letting down on quality of performance which you people exemplify.

"We are carrying on a program about four times as big as before the war with about the same size staff REA had then. And even before the war, REA had a reputation for operating with the minimum of waste motion and performing its great task efficiently and economically. Everyone of you, whether you work in the mail room or sit at a typewriter or do some other clerical or professional work, is making a direct and valuable contribution to the success of this program, which is of such paramount importance to our rural people and to the Nation as a whole.

"You have every right to be proud of your part in it. You need never to be ashamed to let it be known that you are a public servant on the REA team. The program's outstanding record of achievement speaks for itself and for the quality of the work you have done."

LAY-OFF: The Veterans Administration here yesterday gave 30-day discharge notices to 179 CAF-3 insurance accounting clerks. All employes affected had either war service or temporary status and they would have been ordered laid off a year ago by Civil Service if VA had not been successful in getting an extension for them.

OPENINGS: But VA also has these jobs open here. Shorthand reporter, $3351 a year; medical officer, $6250; design engineer, $4479 to $5232, and cost accountant, $5232. If interested, get details in Room 2057 of the Munitions Bldg., 17th & Constitution Ave. . . .

INTERIOR: Paul Howard has been appointed chief librarian of the Interior Department. He will merge all libraries there into a single system.

Crowds Head Out of City For Weekend

Mostly Fair Skies Forecast But 286 Accidental Deaths Are Predicted

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Washington took on some aspects of a deserted city last night as the usual large Labor Day crowds headed out of town by train, plane, bus and auto for a last summer holiday.

Officials at Union Station, National Airport and the bus terminals reported a heavy rush of travelers, but not heavier than that on other holiday eves this summer and last.

Because railroads, air lines and bus lines had extra sections available, there were no tie-ups reported and transportation moved smoothly. Clear skies were especially helpful at the airport, where planes took off and landed without delay.

For stay-at-homes, it promises to be a quiet and restful weekend. For those who need to shop, today should be ideal. Downtown stores will remain open for the day. They will be closed Monday, however.

Most of the downtown restaurants, which remain open Sundays and holidays, will serve through the weekend.

The weather forecaster also had a good word for stay-at-homes, who might like to picnic or enjoy other out-of-doors fun. The weather should be mostly fair with only a remote chance of showers Sunday, he said. Today will have a few clouds, but the temperature should reach 80, topping yesterday's high of 79, he predicted.

Banks and most chain grocery stores also will be closed Monday. District Court will shut down, while Municipal Court will be open only for lock-up cases.

The only dark spot looming on the horizon is the prediction that about 286 people may be killed in accidents throughout the country. Safety officials have warned motorists to use extra caution driving on heavily trafficked highways.

They have also warned that many drownings and "miscellaneous" accidents may occur unless vacationers use care and their heads. Their predictions are based on figures of other years.

Automobile traffic was apparently moving out of town smoothly last night. The American Automobile Association reported there were only the normal number of trouble calls from motorists on nearby roads, while police reported traffic flowed normally out of the District without tieups of any kind.

VA Tightens Requirements For GI Schools

On the eve of the fall-enrollment season, the Veterans' Administration yesterday took a double-barreled move aimed primarily at training schools set up mainly to catch the Government-supported GI trade.

Forty schools in the Washington area are expected to be affected adversely by the two new qualifications laid down for schools "before they accept veteran-enrolees at Government expense.":

The school must have been in operation for at least a 12-month period.

However, those veterans who commenced their training at such schools before August 24, 1949, may continue it and still get their tuition and subsistence allowances, the VA said.

This is the date Public Law 266 took effect. The law itself provided that Government aid to GIs be restricted to those enrolled in schools in operation for a year or longer.

The other requirement, a VA spokesman said, is contained in VA instructions amplifying the law and stating that the effective date of a school's operation "will be the date on which a full schedule of instruction was commenced by the school to a minimum of 25 students"

Of the 40 affected schools in the Washington area, 11 do not meet the one-year requirement and 29 the 25-student one.

The figures are based on a preliminary survey and may be changed somewhat as a further study of the schools is made.

The new regulations provide also that the qualifying school must have provided to the 25 students during the required year "the course or courses of substantially the same length and character as those to be offered following the initial year."

In other words, a music school could not suddenly blossom out with courses in woodworking and gather in Government-supported enrollees in such courses.

Also, the school must have been in operation under substantially the same ownership and management for a full 12-month period.

PUC Authorizes School Bus Route

Motor Posse Gets Man in Purse Snatch

Back home in Cincinnati yesterday with her purse and her patriotic pride intact after a brief glimpse at the Nation's Capital was Miss Eleanor Taylor, 32.

Miss Taylor had a few minutes between trains Thursday night as she passed through Washington en route home. She stepped from Union Station to gaze proudly upon the lighted dome of the Capitol.

She was rudely interrupted when a thief snatched her purse at Louisiana ave. and 1st st. nw. The man fled with the purse, which contained $84, Miss Taylor's train ticket and personal papers.

Miss Taylor's screams were heard by Detective Sergts. James Roche and William H. Sparshott, cruising a half-block away. Miss Taylor showed them the thief had run toward New Jersey ave.

Two cab drivers and a passing motorist, Gordon Donald of 2712 Terrace rd. se., joined the detectives and circled the area in which the thief had disappeared.

Minutes later, the four cars converged from opposite directions at D st. and New Jersey ave. nw. The detectives announced they had the fugitive in the middle.

They said they seized Woodrow Hickson, 31 of 100 I st. nw., recovered the purse and its contents and charged Hickson with robbery.

Miss Taylor's purse was back in her hands five minutes after it had been snatched from her. She got back to the station in time to catch her train to Cincinnati.

Police Probe $4200 Holdup Theft Story

Vice squad detectives yesterday entered the investigation into the reported holdup-robbery of $4200 early yesterday at the home of Roosevelt Spencer, 28, of 224 F st. ne.

Police said Spencer's record shows six arrests on numbers charges and several convictions. On the basis of this, vice squad men began sifting the underworld for possible information.

However, Spencer insisted to police that the cash taken by three armed men who invaded his home at 12:40 a. m. was not "gambling" money but cash claims paid to him and his wife, Lucille, on family deaths by insurance companies. Police said he told them he was no longer in the numbers racket.

Spencer said one of the men gained entrance to his home by a ruse, claiming to have a message from a man known to Spencer. When he opened his door, Spencer said, he was covered by a revolver and two confederates joined the gunman.

Two of the men herded Spencer into the kitchen while the third man remained as a lookout in the front room. They bound Spencer's hands and feet with rope and put a towel over his mouth, police said they were told.

Air Force Probes Explosion at Bolling Air Base

An Air Force investigation board is looking into the cause of an explosion at Bolling Air Force Base Thursday night which wrecked a 22-foot crash boat.

The explosion occurred, officers said, when Master Sergt. Joseph MacKay, 29, chief of the night alert crash boat crew, started the boat's single engine after refueling it 20 minutes earlier. The boat was tied at the base dock.

Sergeant MacKay was blown into the water by the explosion and swam to shore uninjured. The base fire department extinguished a fire caused by the blast in 15 minutes.

Printers Ask ITU to Grant Strike Right

Local No. 101 Seeks Authority to Act From Parent Body In Contract Dispute

Commercial printers of Washington are seeking strike authorization from the International Typographical Union in their contract dispute with the printing firms here, it was learned yesterday.

Negotiations between Typographical Union No. 101, representing the 450 commercial printers, and the Graphic Arts Association, representing the printing houses, are currently deadlocked over wages.

When negotiations got under way last spring, the printing shops suggested a 36-cent-an-hour cut in pay; the union asked for a 40-cent increase in wages. The employers later offered to continue the present rate of $2.36 an hour for a 37½-hour week; the union's scale committee offered to recommend a 10-cent raise to the rank and file, if the employers agreed to the boost.

When the Graphic Arts Association stuck by its no-raise stand, the union voted to seek strike authorization from international headquarters.

Papers Seek New Contract

Meanwhile, the Washington Publishers Association, representing the four daily newspapers here, caught the jump on the union local. In calling for negotiation of a new contract, the publishers stated that they, too, will seek a reduction in the wage rate, currently $2.60 an hour for a 35-hour week.

"In view of the present economic trends," the publishers informed the printers' union, "a substantial reduction in wages is justified." The publishers named no figure but asked that the matter be thrashed out by the scale committees during negotiations.

Local union officials expressed surprise that the publishers came up with proposals for a new contract before the union. The local has called a special meeting of its 650 newspaper members for Sunday, 2 p. m., at Pythian Temple to discuss the union's own proposition, which is certain to contain a wage increase demand.

Would Drop Some Clauses

As they did in negotiations last year, the publishers asked for elimination of certain contract clauses, including the setting of "bogus" or duplicatory type for advertisements and acceptance of ITU rules by the publishers.

This year's proposal of the publishers includes also suggested changes in the provisions dealing with shift hours, apprentice ratios, foremen, and hiring.

Publishers and printers have been operating without a written contract for the past two years, since the Taft-Hartley Act outlawed the closed shop. The present contract or understanding is due to expire November 11.

Illegal Search Causes U. S. To Drop Case

Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson refused yesterday to prosecute Theodore E. Meekins, 44, on numbers lottery charges placed by police.

Wilson ruled that the arrest of Meekins who resides at 814 Otis pl. nw., was predicated on an illegal search. Meekins had been charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

The prosecutor told reporters that police had information from a third party that Meekins was in the "numbers" game and followed him over a period of time but saw no wrongdoing. They accosted him Thursday as he was near his car in the 800 block of Otis pl.

Police declared that Meekins protested his innocence and invited a search of his person. Police found nothing but then continued by searching his car. There, they discovered a quantity of numbers slips in the pocket of a coat. Also, a numbers slip and $30 in change was found in a canvas bag.

Wilson said that since police saw no evidence of crime, they were not legally empowered to search Meekins car.

Arlington Police To Be Briefed On Jurisdiction

A memorandum to the Arlington police department, clearing up questions as to the county's jurisdiction in Rosslyn Plaza at the end of Key Bridge was being prepared yesterday by Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul D. Brown.

Brown said the county and the Federal Government have had concurrent jurisdiction over the bridge approach since 1886, but that county police have sometimes assumed the area is Federal territory only.

The memorandum followed a case in County Court last week in which Washington Cab Driver Andrew J. Koerner, jr., was convicted of hacking without a Virginia license, after he picked up a passenger with an Arlington destination in the Plaza.

Skeleton Key To Car Used By Escapee From Lorton

Shane Had Second One in Possession When Captured by Police in District

One of two Lorton Reformatory escapees, who were captured Thursday after a police chase in Washington, had two skeleton keys for auto ignitions in his possession, police reported yesterday.

One of the keys was found on Edward M. Shane, 26, and the other in the ignition of the auto which he and Robert Waldron, 19, had stolen in Fairfax County, they said.

Superintendent Edward J. Welch said that Shane or Waldron could have made the keys over a long period of time while they were being trained as mechanics in the workshops there. The keys were of hard steel and believed to have been made from a hack saw or similar tool.

Charges Listed

Welch said that charges of escape and theft of a reformatory truck, in which they fled, will be drawn up against both men and submitted in a few days to George R. Humrickhouse, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia at Richmond. The cases probably will be presented to the Alexandria grand jury at its next meeting.

The FBI yesterday presented a charge of transporting a stolen auto from Virginia into the District against both men to the United States Attorney's office here for that office to decide on further action.

Fairfax County police said they will confer with G. L. Sinclair, owner of the stolen auto, before they decide if they also will prefer charges of auto theft against the pair.

Waldron, serving 1 to 4 years for auto theft, had been admitted to Lorton last February 18. Shane, serving 1 to 8 years for robbery, had been admitted March 18. Both men will be kept in confinement pending disposition of the charges against them, Welch said.

Garage Workers

The two men were working in a garage at the reformatory when they jumped into the dump truck and fled, abandoning the truck in the woods about five miles away. Later they stole Sinclair's car and drove into the District, where they were arrested at Maine ave. and 12th st. sw. by police after a 70-mile-an-hour chase along the Tidal Basin. Police fired six shots during the chase, but no one was injured.

Donald Clemmer, Director of the Department of Corrections, yesterday sent a letter of appreciation to Major Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police, thanking him for the work of his department and his personal supervision during the police alert for the two men.

Barrett commended all members of the force who responded to the alarm, especially the two policemen, Pvts. Wallace Valentine and Joseph O'Connell, who arrested the pair. He asked all commanding officers to submit a list of men who responded to the alarm so that proper notation can be made on their personnel records.

Independents' Sales Up 5% Here in July

By S. Oliver Goodman

Combined volume of Washington independent retailers in July showed a 5 per cent increase over the same month last year, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

This was counter to the national trend, where retail trade was down 7 per cent for the month. Part of the local rise could be attributed to efforts to avoid the sales tax which went into effect here on August 1.

For the seven months ended July 31, nonchain trade here was reported 3 per cent higher than in the same 1948 period.

The seasonal drop here—from June to July—was 7 per cent, compared with a national decline of 15 per cent.

Subject: Animal-like creatures

Dr. Mann has received some animal-like creatures which might be of interest to people who are interested in animal-like creatures. There are a pair of Australian Opossum. Australian opossums are phalangers which somewhat resemble true opossums. In case anyone might want to know a little more about them, they are chiefly nocturnal, largely arboreal and almost omnivorous and are members of any of various marsupials of the family Didelphidae. This should clear up any doubt one might have about opossums.

There are also a pair of Siberian Red-breasted Geese. They are being investigated. Most people think this long-necked thing that honks is just a goose. He isn't. He is a member of any of various lamellirostral birds which constitute the subfamily Anserinae of the family Anatidae. This is worth remembering for future reference.

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

The third pair of animal-like things are a pair of Hamadryas Baboons from Ethiopia. Mr. Webster, who wrote a book, says the baboon is a grotesque figure in architectural or decorative work. Except for the decorative work part, I would accept this definition at face value. However, I suspect the second definition is closer to the subject. The baboon constitutes the Papio and allied genera....of course, anyone knows that.

Dr. Mann thinks the baboons and the Communist Geese might make interesting if not attractive pictures. The Australian Opossums, in spite of their complicated heritage, are small, brown, uninteresting things...besides being table food down South, way down, that is.

New York Dance to Open Another Big Season

By Nicha Soure

GET READY for another big State society season—with the passing of Labor Day.

Next Saturday, at the traditional opening of the State society calendar, New York will inaugurate the fall season with a "National Defense Night Ball."

Last year it was the New York colleges that were featured at the society dances. This year it will be the Government departments, which includes special nights for Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, Justice, Labor, Post Office and the Treasury Departments.

But more about the other dances later. The September 10 dance will be held at the Shoreham Hotel. Guests will dance to the music of Dave McWilliams orchestra between 10 p. m. and 1 a. m.

Since the dance is in honor of the Department of National Defense, all uniformed personnel will be guests of the society. Plans are being made to have motion pictures and service displays outside the ballroom prior to the dancing session.

During the intermission, New York State Society President Harold B. Barnett will introduce the honored guests following the presentation of colors by the color guard.

In addition to its more formal affairs at the Shoreham Hotel, the society will hold six parties for members and their friends at Pierce Hall. The annual Maytime dance and cruise aboard the S. S. Mount Vernon will climax the varied activities of the season.

For further information about the society and the dances planned for the fall, call the secretary, Miss Dorothy Gollinger, at Kenmore 3-5004 during the evening.

YOU WILL probably find the Washington members of the Texas State Society in Philadelphia on September 24.

On that day the University of Texas Longhorns will play Temple University at Franklin Field. The Washington and New York alumni of the Lone Star State university are planning entertainment for fellow Texans following the game.

Tickets to the game may be ordered from Miss Alice Archer, Football Ticket Manager, Drawer G, University Station, Austin, Tex. Deadline time for tickets is September 10, so the society recommends mailing requests from Washington before September 6.

WHEN congratulations are passed around to the State societies for rounding up their members and planning interesting entertainment, Ohio will be in for its share of orchids.

The Buckeyes really pepped up their get-togethers recently with an "Ohio State Night" on the baseball diamond, a Watergate concert attendance with the Ohioans sitting together and a picnic during a typically slow Washington summer season. With triumphs in the past, the Ohio State Society officers are going ahead with plans for a lively winter season.

First on the calendar will be a dinner-dance in the Terrace Room at the National Airport on Saturday, September 17. The affair will be for Ohio State Society members and their guests. In the early part of the evening there will be a reception given by the State officers for the new members.

About Ironing Covered Cotton Belts

I have several very nice cotton dresses which do not look quite fresh because they have covered cotton belts. Can you tell me the most effective and safest way to wash and iron these belts? E. C. B.

Lay the belts on a flat surface and use a brush to wash them. Gently rub mild soap suds into the belt with the brush. When clean, wipe off all suds with a damp cloth and as you wipe, frequently rinse the cloth in clear water. Blot as dry as possible with towel. Do not bend or twist the belt during the washing or rinsing. Hang straight on line to dry. No ironing should be necessary. If, however, the belt should be wrinkled, press on the cotton side by using a barely warm iron.

Recently I purchased a hide-a-bed covered with a floral print and tan background. I had one club chair upholstered in red plastic with a hassock to match and a platform rocker in brown plastic. I have one other chair to be upholstered and I can't decide what color I should use. I have a gray-green rug, solid color. Do you think this third chair should be green or could I use yellow? I am considering yellow plastic for this. Is this poor taste? R. A. B.

I would favor having the third chair upholstered in either red or brown to match one of the other chairs rather than to introduce another color. If you choose yellow or green, each piece of furniture in the room would be different and this would tend to give the room a spotty effect.

It is perfectly all right to have all the chairs done in plastic. As a matter of fact, since you are using several colors it is wise to have a similarity of fabric.

In dyeing clothes, the directions on the dye box seem very complete to one who has never tried it, but one point I wonder about: Is it necessary to remove such objects as buttons, snaps, hooks and eyes and especially zippers? K. B.

Yes, it really is necessary to remove buttons, zippers, etc., before dyeing a garment. The manufacturers of dye products make these recommendations for several reasons: Often the fabric in the zipper is not the same as that in the dress and would therefore take the dye differently. Then, too, the extra thickness of the several folds of material around the zipper would not absorb the dye as readily as a single thickness and the color would be different. Also, if the fabric is to be boiled in the dye, the high temperature would probably remove or change the finish on the zipper so it would not be satisfactory for later use.

How can I remove a stain from a light green broadloom (unpatterned rug? I spilled lemon oil furniture polish on a foot-square area. I have already tried carbon tetrachloride and soap and water, but there is still a discolored area. J. S.

The best way to remove this type of stain from a rug is to mix carbon tetrachloride with corn meal to make the meal just damp. Work the damp meal deeply into the pile of the rug and let stand until completely dry. Remove with the vacuum sweeper. It will probably take several applications to remove the oil completely as it takes time to absorb it from the rug.

What is the fastest way to get rid of silver fish in all of our closets? G. A. C.

Remove the clothes from the closets and spray baseboards, floor cracks, and walls with 5 per cent DDT solution. Silverfish hide in cracks and such places during the day, so they will come in contact with the DDT when they emerge and be killed.

The clothes should be thoroughly shaken before they are returned to the closet, but in case some of the silverfish should remain on them, they, too, will eventually be killed on contact with DDT on the walls and other places.

The effect of DDT will remain for several months.

Is there any way to remove a stain from a white nylon shirt? It seems to be a varnish stain from a chair. G. A. C.

Your best chance of removing this stain is to use a bleach. The color remover product sold where dyes are sold is an effective bleach for white materials and can be used on nylon. Follow the directions for mixing which come with the product you buy.

Is there any place in Washington that teaches swimming lessons in the evening? G. A. C.

Evening swimming lessons are taught at the Young Women's Christian Association at 17th and K sts. nw. For further information and to register, I suggest you discuss it with the Y direct.

By mistake, a pair of my husband's blue nylon socks got thrown in the washer and now his sport shirts are beautifully mottled with blue dye. Can I remove this dye or will I have to have them cleaned professionally? E. H. O'B.

If these are white shirts, you can probably remove the streaks by using color remover sold where dyes are sold. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy.

If the shirts are colored, any product which will remove the dye streaks will also remove the shirt color. So, the best thing to do in this case is to use the color remover to remove the streaks and shirt color and then redye them.

Can you tell me the firms to contact in regard to telephone work that can be done at home? I called the newspapers but their work is done at their particular office in the evenings. H. M.

The "Help, women" classified advertising column in The Washington Post often carries advertisements for telephone solicitors which have been inserted by the firms wishing the help. Or, you could list your availability in the "Situations, women" column in The Washington Post.

Inquiries and contributions to Ask Anne column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address questions to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Spoiled Boys Held in Line By Spanking

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Here is a father who feels that spanking has wrought a beneficial change in the behavior of two pampered children.

He writes, "About two months ago my wife was asked to care for the three lively sons, 5, 6 and 7, of her brother. The mother has been utterly unable to manage them and her health has suffered because of this.

"Following certain theories she has not allowed them to be spanked. But my wife does not subscribe to such theories. The first time the boys wandered out of the yard and down the street, she brought them home, cut a nice willow twig and then, with no show of excitement, she took each in the bedroom for his first experience minus pants and then put him to bed for a half hour's meditation.

Basic Rules Help

"They have since had similar experiences which they may avoid by obeying some basic rules." For the rest they have wide freedom of play, seldom are scolded and often praised. In a couple of months they will return home and meanwhile are contented and have improved 100 per cent in their behavior.

"My wife uses lots of energy in doing things to please them and they give her love and respect. I think the important thing is not whether they are spanked or not, but whether a mother devotes full time to their care. I believe deprivations are often more unreasonable and unjust and not as effective as spankings. That spankings fail of their purpose, or do harm, only when they are not properly administered such as in anger, or there is a lack of love and care."

This is a fair-minded estimate and I agree with it. The important thing in child care is not spanking or failure to spank but love and interest in the child as an individual.

Spanking Clears Air

Sometimes, a well-deserved spanking clears the air and improves child-parent relationships because both are contrite for different reasons. Used as regular punishment, its effectiveness diminishes with its familiarity. If this were not true and every thinking parent knows that it is—no other punishment would ever be needed. We know that some of the most frequently spanked children are the meanest and most incorrigible, some unspanked ones are good. The average child gets a taste of both treatments.

Your nephews accept their aunt's chastisement as they might not accept the same from their mother. Don't be too sure, therefore, that their treatment is going to make them over. They will be just the same children under her authority as they are different under their aunt's. And spanking isn't all of it.

Don't Travel Like a Gypsy; Pack Up Right

SHINY new cars all over the country were turned into veritable prairie schooners by thoughtless owners this summer. Suits, dresses and coats hung from car windows. Extra shoes cluttered the floor. As for the ledge below the back window, the driver's rear vision was occasionally all but obscured by a jumble of odds and ends. This is an ignominious fate for any car.

Besides degrading your car, you're also degrading yourself. What kind of hotel credit rating do you suppose you get when you enter a hotel carrying a load of clothes over your arm. Bellhops give you the cold shoulder. Hotel managers look askance. And think of your clothes. Just one open window will coat them with dust and grime. Subjected to sun for even a part of the day they're apt to fade. A fast, furious rainstorm will drench them. Then, too, the weight of the clothes on the hanger may crack the window glass. There is also the possibility of theft.

So you late summer vacationers who plan to travel by car, don't follow the example set by your motoring predecessors. Start your trip with your car in order. Today, with luggage designed for simplified, wrinkleproof packing, there's no excuse for a cluttered car. Your dresses, suits and coats can hang in a suitcase, protected from dust and fading and be brought out clean, fresh and unmussed as they were when packed. Shoes and hats go into a hat and shoe case, while such space hoarders as sweaters, slacks and towels can be packed flat in a 26 and 29 inch case.

When clothes are packed in bags, and bags in turn packed in the trunk of the car, motoring will be a great deal easier on the backseat driver. Quarters will be less cramped. No more need to watch your feet to see that they're not firmly planted on the hem of a dress. You don't need to remove the clothes every time you have to debark. Windows can be opened for more air or closed for warmth or to keep out the rain. Instead of keeping your eye monotonously fixed on the road ahead, you can take advantage of clear vision to either side of you and watch the scenery pass.

C. E. Lanning, Rubber Union Official, Dies

Charles E. Lanning, 49, secretary-treasurer of the United Rubber Workers of America, CIO, died yesterday afternoon at Emergency Hospital after suffering a stroke at CIO headquarters here.

Mr. Lanning

Mr. Banning, who lived in Akron, Ohio, where his union's offices are located, complained of pain and then collapsed about 11:30 a. m. in the office of CIO Vice President Allan S. Haywood, 718 Jackson pl. nw. He was taken to Emergency Hospital where he died shortly after 2 p. m.

He and other rubber workers' officials had been conferring with Haywood about the union strike at the B. F. Goodrich plant in Akron and plans for the union convention September 19 in Toronto, a spokesman said.

When informed of his death, Phillip Murray, CIO president, and James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, sent a joint message of condolence to his wife. They said the death was "a deep loss to the whole American movement."

Mr. Lanning, who began working in Ohio mines at the age of 14 and became a union official at 17, was a third-generation unionist. His father was a subdivision president of the United Mine Workers in Ohio and his grandfather was a member of the old Knights of Labor.

In 1917, at the age of 17, he became president of Local 3952, United Mine Workers of America. Some 11 years later he quit mining work and was employed at the Ohio Rubber Co. and was active in the local AFL union.

Mr. Lanning joined the United Rubber Workers in 1933. From 1936 to 1942 when he was elected national secretary-treasurer, he was an organizer for the union and the national CIO in the Akron, New York-New Jersey and Buffalo areas. He was appointed to the executive board of the CIO Political Action Committee by CIO President Murray in June, 1948.

He is survived by his wife and nine children.

Fresh Battles Facing House Labor Group

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The strife-torn House Education and Labor Committee appears headed for fresh battles when Congress returns after an Administration move to dissolve balky subcommittees.

Vacationing members of the Lesinsky Committee were notified yesterday that all special subcommittees had been dissolved.

The move was seen as preparation for next year's battle over Federal aid to education and repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. Presumably, subcommittees more friendly to the Administration would be selected.

The Subcommittee on Federal aid to education, headed by Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.), in particular, gave Administration forces considerable trouble. The subcommittee approved a bill limiting educational aid to public schools, which promptly was denounced as both anti-Catholic and anti-Negro.

Nearly every committeeman out of town. Representative Wingate H. Lucas (D., Tex.), refused to comment on the move. There was considerable speculation in congressional offices, however, that there would be fireworks when members returned to town.

The letter dissolving the subcommittees was mailed after Lesinksi himself had left the city. His office said the subcommittees were dissolved because they have completed their tasks.

Three subcommittees in addition to the one headed by Barden were affected. They were the subcommittee to consider Taft-Hartley repeal, headed by Representative Augustine B. Kelley (D., Pa.); a subcommittee to investigate union racketeers, headed by Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), and a subcommittee to consider FEPC, headed by Representative Adam Clayton Powell (D., N. Y.).

The work of the last-named subcommittee is finished. The full committee has approved an FEPC measure but it had been considered that the other three subcommittees affected would have important tasks in the next few months.

$7 a Week Buys $3500 Baltimore Home in 67 Years

Baltimore, Sept. 2 (AP).—You are poor, you have eight kids and you can't find a place to live. So you agree to buy an old row house without running water for $3500.

You pay $7 a week. All but $1 of it goes on interest charges, fire insurance, and other fees. In 67 years, if you live that long, you pay $24,388 and the house is yours.

Such an arrangement came to light today in Baltimore's Housing Court. Arthur Foreman, unemployed ice man, and Robert Griffin, his next-door neighbor, were charged with failing to remove outside toilets and install at least rudimentary inside plumbing.

They told about the arrangements under which they were buying their house from one of the city's large real estate operators.

50 Agents to Study Cohen's Finances

Los Angeles, Sept 2 (U.P.)—Mickey Cohen's financial records will be given the same detailed examination that led to Al Ca?pone's conviction on income tax charges, United States Attorney James M. Carter said tonight.

The Federal attorney telegraphed Washington asking assignment of 50 additional Internal Revenue agents here for a study of the gangl leader's books. Carter said he was prompted to make the study by the almost half million dollars Cohen posted as bonds when he and seven of his henchmen were arrested on an assault charge.

Flames enveloped the ladder and the father, Richard Gaussman, fell severely burned. The dead children were James, five; Betty, two, and William, five months. Gaussman managed to rescue Joseph, three, before the ladder collapsed.

Democrats to Act In Montgomery

A committee of Montgomery County Democrats will be formed shortly to lay plans to "activate the party for the 1950 elections," committee chairman G. LaMar Kelly, jr., of Rockville, said yesterday.

Kelly was asked to appoint a "representative" committee Thursday night at a rally in the Rockville Circuit Courtroom attended by about 100 county Democrats. He acted as rally chairman.

According to Kelly, who also is Mayor of Rockville, the meeting was organized "spontaneously" by a number of Democrats wanting to organize for the election.

In 1950, county residents will help elect a State Governor, United States Senator and Representatives, State Senators and Delegates and a new County Council.

Among Democrats present Thursday night were James H. Pugh, former State's attorney for Montgomery; James R. Miller, Bethesda trial magistrate; Blair Lee 3d, editor of the Maryland News; John Oxten, a former county commissioner; James W. Gill, vice president of the Board of Education, and Don Gingery, member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Kelly and his committee were asked to report their recommendations back to another rally scheduled for September 16.

Arlington School Milk Bid Accepted

A contract for about $60,000 worth of milk expected to be consumed in Arlington County schools this year was awarded yesterday to Thompson's Dairy by the county school board.

Bids submitted by Thompson's averaged about a half cent lower than those of the Alexandria Dairy, only other bidder. On basis of last year's consumption, the board was told, the school milk bill would be $59,171.90 at Thompson's rates, and $64,212.70 at Alexandria Dairy's rates.

The board awarded contracts for gym equipment totaling $7116.91, less discounts, to seven different firms. Contracts for musical instruments and equipment, totaling $6988.21 also were awarded.

The board also appointed about 10 persons to teaching positions in the elementary schools, including two persons without degrees appointed on a temporary basis.

New Arlington Head Nurse to Start Sept. 15

Miss Anne Smith, graduate of the Garfield Hospital School of Nursing, will take over as superintendent of nurses at Arlington Hospital on September 15, Administrator John J. Anderson said yesterday.

Miss Smith, who has served 11 years at Garfield Hospital, succeeds resigning superintendent Miss Mabel Fuller.

The new superintendent, a 41-year-old native of Charles Town, W. Va., served at Willard Parker Hospital in New York City and Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland before coming to Washington in 1937.

She was awarded a bachelor's degree in nursing in 1943 by Catholic University and received her master's degree in nursing education there last year.

Miss Fuller, graduate of the University of Virginia School of Nursing, has been superintendent at Arlington since last October.

29th Division Men Arrive For Reunion

Early arrivals at the Twenty-ninth Division Association reunion which started at the Washington Hotel yesterday got right down to their sole business — enjoying themselves.

Veterans of either World War, and in many cases of both, they slipped on their distinctive blue and gray overseas caps and started reminiscing in the lobbies and cocktail lounges—unconcerned for the next four days with veterans' benefits or affairs of state.

"We're not after pensions, bonuses or anything like that," declared John Van Horn of Towson, Md., association commander. "We have no political axes to grind. We just want to have a good time."

One of the first and most enthusiastic "twenty-niners" to check in at the hotel yesterday was John Wu Kim of Newark, N. J., the only Chinese doughboy among the 40,000 who served in the division in World War I.

Although he tasted a lot of it as a private first class in the 104th Engineers, Kim's memories yesterday weren't focused on his combat days. They dwelt rather on his almost thwarted efforts to get into combat.

Soon after he volunteered in 1917, Kim said, his company commander called him for a conference about assignments. "He wanted me to cook for him," Kim recalled. "I told him 'I joined the Army to go to fight. If I don't fight I'm going home.'" Kim stayed and fought as two rows of ribbons attest.

The reunion will swell to its expected strength of about 1000 this morning when Col. C. H. Gerhardt, World War II combat commander of the division, rolls in from Fort Meade with a party of 29ers now on active duty.

The Fort Meade party also will bring appropriate memorabilia which will be displayed in the hotel lobby.

One of the highlights of the reunion will be a banquet set for 7 p.m. today. Harold Hoffman, former Governor of New Jersey, and a Twenty-ninth Division officer in the first war, will be the banquet toastmaster.

The accused was identified by police as Mahlon C. Ward, an employe of the Civil Service Commission who lives in Groveton, Va. He is free under $1000 bond.

Police said Ward entered the girl's home at Spring Bank, south of Groveton, Monday afternoon when she was alone with an older sister. The older girl ran for help, police said, and Ward was not there when police arrived. He was arrested later at home on basis of automobile license tag number supplied by neighbors.

Judge Harry Carrico granted the continuance to give Ward an opportunity to get a lawyer.

Vaccination Bars Typhoid Year or More

(This is the last of a series of six articles prepared by Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer of the District of Columbia, on the immunization of children against disease as schooldays approach once again).

By Dr. George C. Ruhland

Many city dwellers fail to realize the possibility of contracting typhoid fever. In most cities, the health departments see to it that water and milk supplies are protected and the general population does not always realize how vital this protection is to their health. Much of the typhoid fever which now occurs can be traced to typhoid carriers (persons who carry the disease but are not themselves sick) who have contaminated water, milk, or other foods. Consequently, typhoid carriers should never be permitted to handle food.

When protection cannot be obtained through sanitary measures, vaccination against typhoid fever is helpful.

Year's Protection

Typhoid vaccine is injected in three doses at weekly intervals. Ordinarily, this series of injections protects against the disease for a year or more. Those who live in areas where they might be exposed to typhoid infection should be revaccinated periodically. This is a simple, rapid, and effective method of giving some protection against typhoid fever.

All children and adults who are likely to be exposed to typhoid fever organisms, either through the handling of patients, through consuming contaminated water, milk, or other liquids or foods, should get typhoid immunization.

Anyone who is likely to be traveling to parts of this country or to foreign countries where sanitation is poor or lacking should be vaccinated against typhoid fever prior to travel.

At Any Time Of Life

Vaccination can be given at any time from infancy to adult life.

The vaccination gives some protection for about a year, after which a revaccination should be given. A single booster dose is advised.

Immunization clinics at Polk Health Center, 7th and P st. nw., will be open at 3 p. m. every Tuesday.

Further information may be obtained by calling NAtional 6000, Extension 641.

In summary, modern medical thought, as expressed by most competent medical authorities, tends toward immunization at a much earlier time in life than was considered advisable even several years ago.

Only by a continuing program of immunization can we be sure that these diseases of childhood wi'l not attack our city. If by chance any of the diseases should be introduced, the fact that all persons are immunized against them will prevent widespread or severe epidemics. The cooperation of all citizens in Washington, is urgently solicited in the immunization program against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, typhoid fever, and smallpox.

Safety Festival Parades Set Today In Rogers Heights

Activity will get under way at the Edmonston rd. and Hamilton st. site at 9 a. m. with a baseball game, followed by a coaster derby, Boy and Girl Scout demonstrations and a display of firefighting techniques. In the afternoon, following the parade, a military drill will be presented by "Washington's Own" Third Infantry Regiment.

NBC and CBS Join Fight on Giveaway Ban

New York, Sept. 2 (AP).—Two more major networks joined the American Broadcasting Co. today in a court fight against the ban on giveaway shows.

The National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System filed civil suits to enjoin the Federal Communications Commission from enforcing its ban on such programs effective October 1. The FCC interpreted them as lotteries.

(A similar suit was filed in Chicago by Radio Features, Inc., which sells syndicated programs. It was claimed many contracts for give-away shows have been canceled.)

NBC and CBS contended, as did ABC earlier in the week, that the Federal agency has no power to interpret the lottery section of the criminal code in this way.

Of the four major networks, only Mutual now has failed to join radio's fight against the ban.

NBC said the ruling would kill six weekly coast-to-coast programs bringing the network a total of more than $3,000,000 a year.

These programs are "Hollywood Calling," "Double or Nothing," "Take It or Leave It," "Quiz Kids," "Dr. I. Q.", and "Chesterfield Supper Club Telephone Quiz."

CBS was fighting to keep at least three programs—"Hit the Jackpot," "Spin to Win" and "Spin It Again." The last-named offers a $25,000 cash award among its prizes.

New D. C. Rule Not a Break For Speeders

Speeders who who believe that they have more immunity from fines under the new traffic regulations are in for a severe disillusionment when they come into court, a District prosecutor declared yesterday.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King told reporters that if anything, the new regulations which went into effect September 1 make it more difficult for speeders to escape penalty.

Under the old rules, a person paced by police at speeds of over the legal limit—generally 25 miles per hour—is liable to conviction for violating the speed limit. This remains just as it was, and traffic conditions are immaterial to the case, King said.

Under the old regulations, if a policeman could not clock the speed of the driver, the officer would place a charge of "unreasonable speed." It was always up to the officer to explain why conditions were such that a reasonable man would not drive so fast, or there would be no conviction.

Now, King said, the officer's task is easier. If he is certain that the speed limit is violated but is unable to clock the speed, he just states this as a fact and the defendant must explain why under the traffic conditions, the speed was reasonable.

The regulation remains the same where the driver goes at an unreasonable speed because of traffic conditions but less than the legal limit, King said. Here, the officer must explain why the rate of travel was unreasonable.

18,000 Jap Prisoners To Be Freed by Reds

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Soviet Union today asked Allied occupation headquarters to supply repatriation shipping for 18,000 Japanese prisoners of war who are to be returned to Japan this month.

Forty-eight thousand prisoners have been repatriated this year. Earlier in the year the Russians said they would return the remaining 95,000 Japanese prisoners of war still in their hands. Occupation headquarters charged the Russians still held more than 400,000 Japanese.

Falls Church to Debate Annexation Proposals

A debate on proposals of the City of Falls Church to annex adjacent Fairfax County territory will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Falls Church Odd Fellows Hall on W. Broad st. near Washington st.

Speakers will be City Attorney LaRue Van Meter, in favor of the plan, and Harold O. Ward, a leader in the antiannexation movement, against it. The meeting is sponsored by the Tyler Park Citizens Association.

TRY IT

When I was a boy a favorite pastime of the children in our neighborhood was pushing an old wheel around with a pusher. This may not sound too interesting, but the control of the wheel is quite a feat and will challenge any child to master its speed and direction.

Any old toy wagon or tricycle will provide the necessary wheel, and the cross stick can be made in a very few minutes. A light lath or stick, a little heavier than a yard stick, will make the handle, and a cross piece of the material should be nailed on so that a "T" is formed. Use small nails, and clinch them to form a strong joint.

To start the wheel rolling slant the pusher handle, and roll the wheel against it as you start moving forward following the wheel. As it moves along guide it from behind with the cross piece and turn it as desired. Try pushing it in circles, along boards, and see if you can make it jump over objects.

Judge Clears Man Of Narcotics Charge

Los Angeles, Sept. 2 (AP).—It's illegal to search a man's stomach for evidence, a Federal judge has ruled.

After giving the opinion that such a procedure is "trial by ordeal," Judge Jacob Weinberger dismissed narcotics charges against Andrew Willis. He was arrested June 26 by Federal narcotics agents ,taken to a hospital strapped to a bed, and a stomach pump was applied. Officers said they recovered two capsules of heroin by this method.

Some Kids Have Quite a Time Bringing Up Their Parents

Mrs. George M. Dove of 3503 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md., tells me that the kids wanted to see the Roy Rogers picture at the drive-in the other night, so off they went.

The picture wasn't bad, but the show in the adjoining car was much better.

While Roy went through his routine of being beaten, dragged by a horse, chased by wild dogs, kicked and shot, the excitement in the next car mounted proportionately.

Mama and her three children were following the action with intense interest, and when Roy got himself into a particularly dangerous spot, Mama couldn't contain herself.

"Shhh, Mom," counseled the kids. "Roy'll get them. He always does."

But Mama was not to be placated. "They ought to be horsewhipped. Those crooks! Look what they're doing to Roy now."

"It's okay, Mom," persisted the kids. "Roy's just playing possum. He'll get up in a minute and knock 'em all out. See, Mom—there he goes now. What'd we tell you?"

Mrs. Dove wonders whether they had to give Mama a sedative before they could get her to sleep that night.

INNOCENTS ABROAD

FCC Chairman Wayne Coy is back in town again after several months of high-level conferences in Europe.

"You look like you lost a little weight while you were over there," I remarked to him. "Yes," the commissioner agreed, "I lost about 10 pounds on that French cooking I was getting. It's supposed to be the best in the world—but not for a country boy from Indiana."

"What's the matter with it?" I asked. "Well," replied Coy, "it's their habit of putting sauces on everything. Very tasty sauces—but after a while you get tired of them and you hanker for a plain, old-fashioned piece of beefsteak.

"So you explain the situation very carefully to the waiter, who turns out to be a very hard man to convince. In desperation, you put your foot down. You insist on a chunk of meat without any sauce.

"The waiter murmurs 'C'est dommage' and ambles off to the kitchen, shaking his head. Victory is in sight."

"And then?" I prodded, anxious for the climax to this little drama.

"And then," sighed Coy, "he brings your order out, drenched in sauce—and that's the way you eat it."

"I'd Rather Catch"

by

Birdie Tebbetts

The first-hand story of the Red Sox star

Anyone would rather catch if he could catch like Birdie Tebbetts! With thirteen years in the majors, he has just been voted the American League's most popular Man Behind the Plate.

Now Birdie steps out, removes his mask, and gives you the lowdown on his trade. He talks about signals to the pitcher, how they are used . . . and stolen. He reveals his true opinion of umpires. He discusses the finer tricks of catching . . . psychological warfare against the batter, helping a pitcher regain control, handling bunts, and the pickoff play. In the final installment Birdi chooses his own American League all star team.

Here's first-rate reading for any sports fan. No youngster hoping to improve his own catching game should miss it. Four installments, tomorrow through Wednesday in The Washington Post.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. Mystery Man of Middle East

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

Robert S. Allen

He is Maj. Robert T. Lincoln, United States intelligence officer.

It is particularly fitting to acclaim him today because exactly 10 years ago Russia hurled its first blast at him. The Soviets were then the new allies of Adolph Hitler, and in a furious broadcast denounced Lincoln as an "American spy and saboteur." Both the Nazis and Russians put a big price on his head, but he is still alive and still annoying the gall out of the latter.

To the awed Middle East, Lincoln is more extraordinary than Britain's late famed "Lawrence of Arabia." Tales of Lincoln's feats are even more numerous and astounding than those about Lawrence.

This much can be said about him: he is the eyes and ears of democracy in an explosive outpost of the world, and his services to his country are probably more hazardous and thankless than those of any other single individual.

Versatile Linguist

The natives say Lincoln married the daughter of a Kurdish chief. There is no known proof of that. It is one of the many stories told about him.

How many of these stories are true, no one knows. But they are all over the Middle East, and new ones are constantly cropping up. In fact, Lincoln has become so legendary that some have begun to cast doubt on his existence.

Hi' Ya, Judge

There is one high United States civilian, however, who can personally attest that there is a Maj. Robert T. Lincoln.

The official is Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

He met the mysterious intelligence officer during a recent mountain-climbing trip in inner Iran. The meeting was as brief as it was startling.

Douglas, his 16-year-old son, and Terry Dooher of the United States Embassy in Teheran, were camped in the Bakhtiari country in western Persia. The Bakhtiari are great horsemen, and always ride at full gallop. One evening they invited Douglas to ride with them.

He accepted, and was soon racing at breakneck speed across the plain with a Bakhtiari on each side of him. Not speaking their language, Douglas rode in silence. Finally the party halted near a small stream to rest and water the horses.

Douglas offered a cigarette to the "native" standing on his right, and was nearly bowled over when he said in perfect English, "Thank you, Mr. Justice. How are you enjoying your trip?"

It was Major Lincoln.

Lincoln was taciturn even with Douglas. He asked him to thank Ambassador John Wiley for a personal favor and also to deliver information to Wiley for the transmittal of funds for a certain mission.

When he related the experience to Dooher, the latter was not surprised.

"I envy you," the young career man said. "I wish I had been with you. I have never met Lincoln myself. I have always been hoping something like this would happen to me. He is the all-time mystery man of the Middle East. We are very fortunate to have a man like him."

When Douglas transmited Lincoln's message to Ambassador Wiley, he, too, was not surprised.

"I've been expecting to hear from Lincoln," Wiley said, "but it never occurred to me that you might be the medium. If I had thought that likely, I would have told you to inform him that he has been recommended for promotion. He deserves it richly."

Note—When the Iranian Colonel, who accompanied Douglas, learned about his meeting with Lincoln, the Iranian immediately ordered out a large cavalry detachment to scour the area. They rode all night but found no trace of Lincoln.

Taft and Bricker Called Best and Worst Senators

New York, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—Robert A. Taft and John W. Bricker, both Republicans from Ohio, were chosen, respectively, the best and worst of United States Senators in a poll of 211 Washington correspondents, Pagant magazine said today.

Bricker had "strong opposition" in the "worst" category, the magazine said. Finishing behind him, in order, were William E. Jenner, (R., Ind.), Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.); Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho), and William Langer (R., N. Dak.).

Ranked behind Taft as "best" were Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.); Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), and Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.).

Republic Pictures hired Bill Summers to umpire the ballgame in "The Kid From Cleveland," in which Lou Boudreau is called upon to hit a home run. The script provided that the first pitch to Boudreau was to be a strike, the second a ball—and the Boudreau homer . . . Summers called the first one a strike, but then he called the second one "strike two" . . . The director, Herbert Kline, corrected the umpire, "That's a ball. Look at your script" . . . "I'm looking at the plate," Umpire Summers replied. "Tell your pitcher to look at the script."

Luis Munoz Marin, the Governor of Puerto Rico, was at a diplomatic reception where he spoke of the drinking difficulties entailed in the job of diplomacy. He said that diplomats usually can handle their fair quota of drinks, and enjoy it. "Like most men," said the Governor, "diplomats enjoy their voluntary drinks—before, during and/or after dinner. But their trouble," he added, "comes with the involuntary drinks—those they are compelled to take at diplomatic parties. Each is sufficient, alone, but when you combine the involuntary drinking with the voluntary—there's the trouble.

Book Cover Decoration

Children's books these days are most artistically prepared. The jackets, or dust covers, are often works of art in themselves.

Sometimes these pictures are so attractive that they may be used for room decoration. The simplest method is to mount them on heavy pieces of cardboard, use colored yarn instead of picture wire and put them about the room. Or, if one has enough collected to cover a small two-panel screen, very interesting effects can be obtained.

One of the real advantages in using book covers as pictures is that youngsters can change them from time to time, fitting the pictures to their moods or even to the season. Magazine covers may supplement the youngsters' "art collections." They are mounted in the same way.

Often we feel that only fairly expensive framed pictures are suitable for children's-room decoration. Actually, the book and magazine cover pictures may be pleasing and even more acceptable to the children themselves.
